LINGLE SHOPS RESUME AFTER LONG IDLENESS

Donald S. Barrows, of Patterson, N. J., Becomes Gen'l M'gr.

NICE ORDERS IN HAND

It is Believed that Old-Time Machine Shops and Foundry Will Continue on Paying Basis—J. Howard Lingle Will Continue With Firm.

Work has been resumed at Lingle's Machine Shops. In a business way this is the best piece of news Bellefonte has received since the official announcement of resumption of operations at the Bellefonte and Nittany furnaces and the Scotia mines.

A number of nice orders were received last week by J. Howard Lingle and on Monday quite a force of men were put to work. It is believed by the management that sufficient work is in hand and being negotiated for to warrant steady operation of the shops and foundry from this time on.

In connection with the plans for the future management of this old-time plant it is learned Donald S. Barrows, of Patterson, N. J., will become General Manager. It is his intention to make Bellefonte his home. With Mrs. Barrows he will arrive here in the next few days.

Mr. Barrows is a man of wide experience in the business and it is expected that with his co-operation the shops will be put on a basis that will assure their continued success. Mr. Lingle will, of course, continue with the business.

The Lingle shops have been virtually idle for many months, in fact since the severe business depression which forced such a large number of industrial concerns to reduce their forces or suspend operations entirely.

With the revival of business over the country Mr. Lingle has been working untiringly to adjust affairs to warrant starting work. During the last five or six weeks he has received numerous inquiries from large concerns and last week the tide turned, bringing several desirable orders for castings, etc. On Sunday he sent out the welcome news to some of the old employees to return to work on Monday.

BOY STABS COMPANION

Quarrel at Centre Hall Has Serious Results--Warrant Issued.

A quarrel over a trifling incident at Centre Hall on Saturday resulted in the stabbing of a young man named Louck and the swearing out of a warrant for a boy by the name of Walker, the latter residing at Milroy. A knife blade was plunged into Louck and broken off at the handle during the trouble. Fortunately his injuries are not regarded as dangerous.

It seems that the two boys became involved in a dispute in front of Dauberman's butcher shop and during the mix-up Walker, it is alleged, struck at Louck with a knife. Walker than disappeared, spending the night at a nearby-farm. Louck was given medical attention after which a warrant was issued for the arrest of his assailant.

Thirty Years for Stealing Wheat.

A severe penalty for stealing wheat was imposed on Ward Ketcham, at Bloomsburg last week. He was convicted of stealing 21 bushels of wheat from the barn of Levi Miller, of Mifflin township. The recent law provides that where a man has twice served sentences of over one year he shall be given the maximum sentence of 30 years. Ketcham has served three years for burglarly in Columbia county and 18 months for larceny in Luzerne county. Accordingly when he appeared before Judge Evans Thursday he was sentenced to pay the costs of the prosecution, a fine of $100 and serve the maximum term of 30 years in the penitentiary.

Individual Communion Cups.

Individual communion cups will be used in the Methodist Church in Bellefonte in the future. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees it was decided to adopt the individual cups in preference to the old plan of using one cup for all communicants. It was also decided to secure an electric carpet sweeper and to clean the frescoing in the main church room.

Purchases Gardner Property.

Wilson I. Fleming has purchased the Mitchell I. Gardner property on Spring Street, adjoining that occupied by Emil Joseph. The property in question is now occupied by Jacob P. Smith. Mr. Fleming expects to take possession April 1st.

CAPT. W. C. PATTERSON

Sudden Death of Prominent Business Man at State College.

A death which cast gloom over a wide circle of friends and acquaintances and evoked many expressions of deepest sympathy was that on Saturday night of Capt. Wm. C. Patterson, general manager and superintendent of buildings and grounds at State College, and actively identified with numerous business interests at that place and also in Bellefonte.

Mr. Patterson was ill but a few days. On Wednesday last he was about as usual, attending to business and greeting friends. On the night of that day he was stricken with paralysis. It was thought for a time that he would not survive the night but he rallied somewhat and lingered until shortly after 8 o'clock on Saturday evening when he died. The funeral was held on Tuesday interment being made at Pine Hall. The services were attended by many business men and members of Grand Army Posts from State College, Lemont, Pine Grove Mills and Bellefonte.

Few men in Centre County served with more credit in the Civil War than Mr. Patterson. He was born in Huntingdon

The College Auditorium was thronged with relatives and friends and business associates of the deceased. The services were in charge of Rev. J. K. Riley, assisted by Dr. Benjamin Gill, Rev. T. C. Miller and Presiding Elder Dr. Benjamin Conner. President Sparks, of State College, spoke briefly after which Judge Ellis L. Orvis delivered a beautiful eulogy, dwelling on the high character and many fine qualities of Mr. Patterson. The pall bearers were Professor John Hamilton, Colonel W. Fred Reynolds, D. C. Krebs, J. L. Holmes, John W. Stewart, Professor J. A. Freeze, Dr. T. F. Hunt, G. E. Oglebee and A. F. Markle.

Few men served with more credit in the Civil war than Capt. Patterson. He was the youngest son of John and Mary Irvin Patterson and was born January 31, 1838. He was married May 28, 1861, leaving his bride of a few hours to go to the seat of war as a member of Co. I, 34th. Penna. Vols., afterward attached to the Penna. Reserves, and was engaged in many hard-fought battles. For a number of months he was a prisoner in Libby prison.

In 1870 Capt. Patterson removed to State College, as proprietors of a general store. The following year he was made Superintendent of Buildings, Farms and Grounds, which position he filled with marked success until the time of his death.

At the time of his death Mr. Patterson was president of the First National Bank of State College, president of the University Water Company of State College and a director of the First National Bank of Bellefonte. He is survived by a widow and the following children: Harry, identified with the Maryland College Experimental Station; Mrs. Blanche Miller, of Harrisburg; Mrs. McDonald, of Altoona, and Mrs. Foster, wife of Professor Foster, of State College.

MRS. MARY BECHDEL.

Mrs. Mary DeLong Bechdel, widow of Perry Samuel Bechdel, died at the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jane Bechdel, at Howard, Sunday morning at three o'clock, of infirmities incident to old age. Deceased was born in Liberty towuship, Nov. 1, 1826, and was aged about 83 years. Her husband preceded her to the grave a number of years ago, and three children, Jennie, Alfred and Nathan, are also dead. With the exception of the past seven months she resided in the township of her birth. She was a member of the church of Christ. Funeral services were held in the church of Christ at Howard, Tuesday forenoon, at 10 o'clock, by Elder J. H. D. Thompson. Interment was made in the Bechdel cemetery near Eagleville.

MRS. JOHN ARMAGAST.

Profound grief among a host of friends was occasioned by the death of Mrs. John Armagast, of Buffalo Run, last Thursday night. Interment was made on Sunday at Meyer's cemetery. The deceased was aged 56 years and was a woman of many splendid qualities. She is survived by her husband, her father, Amos Koch, of Rock; a brother, William Koch, of Stockton, Ill., and the following sisters: Mrs. Charles Reamy, Fillmore; Mrs. Samuel Kramer, Rock; Mrs. L. Stover, of near Bellefonte, and Mrs. William Bodle, of Hunter's Park.

MRS. ADAM NEARHOOD.

Mrs. Adam Nearhood died at her late home, at Centre Hall, last Wednesday, after an extended illness. She was the mother of George Nearhood and was a well known resident of that place. Interment was made at Centre Hall on Saturday morning.

CENTRE COUNTY FAIR DRAWS IDEAL WEATHER

Happy, Good-Natured Crowds Are in Attendance.

INTERESTING FEATURES

Horse Racing, Balloon Ascensions, Live-stock, Poultry and Other Exhibits Furnish Entertainment for All Expect Big Crowd Today.

Ideal weather, happy, good-natured crowds and many interesting exhibits and races, to say nothing of a multitude of amusements, constitute the features of the big Centre County Fair, which opened on Tuesday and continues over tomorrow. While the crowd is not so large as in some other years, this is more than counterbalanced by the splendid weather and the excellence of the numerous attractions.

Yesterday's crowd far surpassed that of Tuesday and today's crowd will be a hummer. It is expected that many thousands of persons from all parts of the county will be in attendance. Scores of hacks and automobiles have been pressed into service to convey the visitors to and from the grounds.

Fine, blinding dust on the roads leading to the grounds proved bothersome for the first day of the fair but yesterday some relief was afforded by a liberal use of water. The track was very soft at some places, the dust causing the drivers considerable annoyance. Despite this handicap the races yesterday were pleasing to the crowds in the grandstand and scattered along the track. A fine card has been prepared for today's races.

For the casual visitor there is plenty to amuse and entertain inside the grounds, the merry-go-round, the ocean wave, punching bags and other strength-testing machines affording opportunities for diversion. The great mid-way, with its many stands, picture shows, shooting galleries and other attractions, offers hours of enjoyment for all.

The exhibits are interesting and in[illegible] and keep up the high standard of the fair in recent years. The fruit exhibit is attracting crowds daily, while the fancy sewing, cakes, preserved fruits, furniture, etc. in other buildings and tents show much skill and care in their preparation.

The live stock and poultry exhibit is especially pleasing, including a number of holsteins from the Lewisburg fair and fine guernseys and Jerseys from the State College Farm and Experimental Station. The poultry exhibit is the best ever. The entries are Centre County products and include some of the finest birds exhibited at any fair in the State. One building is given over exclusively to this feature.

The balloon ascension was a complete success, but the man with the one-ring circus failed to appear.

The dandiest thing at all the fair is the Bellefonte band. This is its first big engagement and it is doing itself and the fair proud. It will play both today and tomorrow.

The first day's races resulted as follows:

2.14 trot, purse $250—Margaret M. G. S. Middaugh, Patterson, first; Billy C, J. T. Shank, Dunlo, second, and Sallie Derby, I. G. Gray, Stormstown, third.

2:30 trot, purse $200—Flying Fritz, H. N. Odell, Jamestown, N. Y., first; Lady Dan, I. N. Troutman, Millerstown, second, and Ben Hamliton, F. R. Sipe, Jenner, third.

Running race, purse $75 Lamp Trimmer, I. G. Gray, Stormstown, first; Lew Hutt, H. W. Shoemaker, Williamsport, second.

CO. E'S MONUMENT

Meeting of Baileyville Citizens to Further Project.

A meeting of the citizens of Baileyville and vicinity has been called for 7.30 o'clock Thursday evening, October 21, at the Baileyville school house for the purpose of organizing a Monumental Committee to advance the movement to erect a monument in memory of Co. E. 45th Penna Vols The movement is one which appeals strongly to all friends of the "boys in blue."

Co. E left for the seat of war from that place forty-eight years ago. Its record is one of which everybody is justly proud. The citizens of Baileyville are deeply interested in the movement to erect the proposed monument and "The Republican" strongly urges all to extend their support to what is one of the most worthy and commendable projects undertaken in recent years.

JOSEPH MILES GREEN

Oldest Settler in Milesburg Dies at Age of Eighty Years.

Death on Tuesday morning claimed Joseph Miles Green of Milesburg, brother of F. Potts Green, the well known druggist, and the oldest resident of Milesburg who was born at that place. The deceased was also the oldest member in years of membership in the Bellefonte Lodge F. and A. M. Had he lived until December 1, next, Mr. Green would have been 80 years old.

The funeral will be held tomorrow, with brief services at 10. 30 o'clock, at his late residence at Milesburg, after which interment will be made at the Union cemetery here with the Masons in charge.

Mr. Green was the eldest son of Joseph and Catherine Miles Green, and was born at Milesburg, December 1, 1829. He lived and died at the homestead his great grandfather, of Samuel Miles, who laid out the borough of Milesburg in 1791. On his mother's side Mr. Green's ancestors came from Wales about the year 1629. Colonel Miles was an officer in the French and English war and also in the war of the Revolution. His ancestors came from Engllish, his grandfather Joseph Green, being the first postmaster of Centre County. Joseph Miles Green received his first and principal education in Milesburg, later attending the Bellefonte Academy for several terms and the Lewisburg University, now Bucknell, for one term. He learned the machinist trade in the shop of his father, afterward entering into partnership with his father and William L. McMeen, in the mercantile and foundry business under the firm name of W. L. McMeen & Co.

Mr. Green was the eleventh member initiated in Bellefonte Lodge 268 F. and A. M. October 31, 1854. He was passed November 28, 1854, and raised to the degree of Master Mason, January 2, 1855. He served as Junior Warden, in 1856, as Senior Warden in 1861, and as Master Warden in 1866. He become a member of the Lock Haven Chapter, Oct. 1855 and joined the Crusade Commandery No. 12, of Bloomsburg, Nov. 1, 1866 and Caldwell Consistory, at Bloomsburg, in 1868.

In 1851 he raised a company at Milesburg be[illegible] captain and later senior [illegible] with Reg. Penna. Vols, of which [illegible] appointed Justice of the Peace of Milesburg, being re-elected to succeed himself for many years,

In 1904 the Bellefonte Lodge F. and A. M. honored Mr. Green with a reception and luncheon, which was largely attended. As a tribute to his many years as a member he was presented with a handsome gold watch.

FUNERAL OF JOHN MEESE

Interment Saturday After Services at Methodist Church.

The funeral of the late John Meese was held at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, interment being made at the Union cemetery, the body being laid to rest beside that of a daughter, Jennie, who died when 8 or 9 years old. As a tribute to his memory all business places in Bellefonte were closed during the funeral services and the Methodist Church was thronged with relatives and friends.

A brief prayer by Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox constituted the service at the late home of the deceased, after which the body was taken to the church. At that place Rev. Dr. Stevens, of Clearfield, and Rev. Dr. Stine, of Tyrone, former pastors of the church, assisted Dr. Wilcox, speaking in the highest praise of the lifework of Mr. Meese and extending comforting sympathy to the bereaved family.

The beautiful service of the Masons, of which Mr. Meese was a member, was used at the grave. The active pall bearers were Robert Cole, Sidney Krumrine, A. C. Mingle, J. S. McCargar, Frank Warfield and C. K. Hicklen. The honorary pall bearers were John P. Harris, Dr. E. S. Dorworth, Hammon Sechler, F. W. Crider, W. I. Fleming and F. P. Green, all brother Masons.

The grocery business of the deceased will be continued under the name of John Meese, under the management of his son-in-law, J. Will Conley. Mr. Meese left a will making disposition of his property, but it has not thus far been examined by the family.

Shoots Large Wild-Cat.

Joseph Gunsallus, a farmer residing near Hubbard bridge, near Beech Creek, shot and killed a large wild-cat on Monday morning. He was awakened by the barking of his dog and thinking that a coon had been treed went out to shoot it. To his surprise he discovered that a large wild-cat was in the tree. Taking aim he fired, the cat dropping to the ground with a thud. It is supposed that the wild-cat has been killing many chickens and turkeys which lately have disappeared from the Gunsallus farm.

WHOLE TON OF STRAW ALL IN ONE FAMILY

Philip Straw Claims Record for Heavy-Weights in State.

TOTAL WEIGHT IS 2084

Father and Mother and Ten Children Tip Beam to Remarkable Figure—Makes Roosevelt Theory Seem a Mere Imitation.

Here's a ton of straw, all bundled up in one family.

Philip Straw, of Julian, proudly claims the record for having the heavy-weight family of Pennsylvania. The total weight of Mr. and Mrs. Straw and ten children is 2084 pounds.

A glance at the list of members of the Straw family makes the Roosevelt theory seem a mere imitation. The list follows:

	Weight
Philip Straw	272
Mrs. Laura Jane Straw	230
William Straw, 30 years old in November next	156
George E. Straw, 28 years old, December 13	202
Bessie Straw, 26 years old, January 23	200
Olive Straw, 17 years old, August 7,	140
Gordon Straw, 22 years old, September 10, last	230
Edna M. Straw, 15 years old, June 12, last	260
Elvie Straw, 13 years old, August 7, last	140
Mable Straw, 10 years old,	102
Earl Straw, 8 years old,	62
Verdie Straw, 4 years old,	50
Total weight	2084

One son, Chester M. Straw, is dead, having been killed on the railroad near Altoona, November 3, 1908. He was about 17 years old and weighed 185 pounds.

Philip Straw, head of this heavy-weight family, laughingly told of the ages of the several members. Throwing [illegible] his coat [illegible] you see its pretty well filled out. It seems to run in our family to be strong and heavy.

"What do we eat to make us so heavy? Nothing different from what other people eat. We work and eat what we please and are healthy. We don't get sick. Living in the open air is the best thing in the world if you want to be strong and feel good."

Philip Straw smiled with satisfaction as he dwelt on the joys of living with every member of the family in good health. As he started for home he turned and called back:

"Don't forget to send me "The Republican."

College Band Entertainment.

The State College band, composed of twenty student musicians, will give a concert and moving picture show at Garman's Opera House, Friday night, Oct. 15. The moving pictures will be brought direct from the Lubin Motion Picture Co., of Philadelphia and cannot be excelled anywhere. There will be over 6000 feet of films used, thus insuring a show of at least two hours. Between each change of pictures the College band will render a number of selections especially arranged for the occasion. There will be a short open air band concert before the curtain goes up at the Opera House.

22nd Pa Vol. Cav. Association.

The survivors of the 22nd Pa. Vol. Cavalry whether of the six month or the three year service will hold their next reunion at Bedford, on Thursday, Oct. 28, 1909. A good attendance is expected and a good time. Come on the early train or the day before, but don't fail to come. Those desiring excursion orders may write to Dr. A. Enfield, President, Bedford, Pa., or Dr. A. R. McCarthy, Mt. Union, Pa., Secretary.

As we do not have all addresses many of you will not receive any other notice than this, but this ought to be notice enough.

Loganton School Resumes.

The Loganton schools reopened on Monday in the several quarters secured for that purpose after the fire some days ago, which completely destroyed the old school house. Temporary seats and desks have been obtained. It is the intention to erect a new and modern school building in time for occupancy next fall.

GROOM 72; BRIDE 55

Minister Weds Clarence Woman After 10 Days Courtship.

Rev. J. B. Kerns, of St. Augustine, Fla., and Mrs. Annie Bullock, of Clarence, were married yesterday by Squire Keichline. The groom is 72 years old and his new wife is 55. Their courtship covered a period of about ten days.

Mr. Kerns is a distant relative of Frank Kerns, the laundryman. He was chaplain on the Indiana when the United States fleet made its tour of the world. About ten days ago Mr. Kerns went to Clarence to visit friends. He met Mrs. Bullock and deciding that he preferred married life to further single blessedness proposed and was accepted. The wedding yesterday was the culmination of the brief courtship. They will go south for their honeymoon trip.

RECORD STRAW-BALING

Nearly 16 Tons Handled in Five Hours on Dreese Farm.

A record for rapid baling of straw was scored one day last week on the farm of Irvin J. Dreese, about one mile and a half beyond Pleasant Gap. In five hours Mr. Dreese and his men baled 31,769 pounds. Ordinarily from 12 to 18 tons are baled in one day.

County Commissioner Zimmerman's steam baler was used in the record-breaking work. It is considered one of the fastest balers in the country. Jasper Rishel, Oscar Rishel and Clyde Wieland were at the baler, while Mr. Dreese and Roy Zimmerman put the straw to the machine. It was the first work Mr. Dreese had done for quite a while but he wielded the pitchfork in old-fashioned style.

REUNION OF 110TH

Members of Gallant Regiment Will Meet Here Oct. 15.

Plans are being perfected for the annual reunion of the 110th Reg. Penna. Vols., which will be held at Bellefonte October 15. It is expected that virtually all the survivors of the regiment will be present. The regiment was recruited chiefly from Centre, Blair, Huntingdon and Clearfield counties.

Headquarters will be established at the Garman House for the reunion. There will be Post, [illegible]

Love Found a Way.

Love found a way—of course it did—when Miss Lulu S. Norton, of Moshannon, and Elmer R. Van Gorder, of Mingoville, started out on Monday to get married only to find a heartless public official in Register Earle C. Tuten who couldn't issue a license because the bride was not of age and had failed to provide the necessary written and sworn-to consent of her father. The young couple journied to Bellefonte in hopeful anticipation and it was not until Register Tuten explained matters that they realized that written consent of Miss Norton's father had not been attested before a notary. Nothing daunted the prospective bride, who is but 19 years old, promptly said that she would return home and have the papers properly sworn to, which she did. On Tuesday she and Mr. Van Gorder again appeared before Register Tuten. This time she was properly fortified and no time was lost in obtaining the necessary license. The young couple then visited Rev. Ambrose Schmidt where the wedding ceremony was performed.

Girl's Mysterious Disappearance.

Smoke Run, a little village up the Moshannon branch, was greatly wrought up last week over the strange disappearance of Miss Parelly Lear. the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lear. The last seen of her was on Tuesday, when she started out without a coat or hat, ostensibly to go to Madera. Since that time all trace of her has been lost. She is short, stoutly built and weighs about 145 pounds.

Hospital Officers Re-Elected.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of the Bellefonte hospital. on Friday night, the several officers were re-elected, as follows: C. C. Shuey, president; Dr. J. L. Seibert, vice president; Harry E. Fenlon, secretary; and A. Lukenbach, treasurer. Joseph L. Montgomary and Dr. Seibert were re-elected trustees.

Colonel Reynolds' New Machine.

The finest thing in the automobile line which has been brought to Bellefonte thus far is a 1910 model Chadwick Great Six, purchased in Philadelphia last week by Col. W. Fred. Reynolds. It is a 70-horse power car and is listed at $5500. Colonel Reynolds now has three fine automobiles.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

Joke on Arch-Bishop Ryan.

Arch-Bishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, who was the recipient of honors at Altoona last week, is fond of good stories. He loves to gather children about him and tell the funniest stories at his command. At Altoona he had the tables turned on him, and by a little boy.

"Why is a horse like a stick of candy?" queried Arch-Bishop Ryan, addressing his question to a group of boys.

"I know", promptly replied one of the youngsters.

"Well, why?" asked Arch-Bishop Ryan.

"Because," the youngster replied, "the harder you lick it the faster it goes."

The promptness with which the youngster gave his reply fairly took the breath of the distinguished Philadelphian. Joining in the laugh which was hugely enjoyed by all present Arch-Bishop Ryan promised the youngster to send him a box of candy from Philadelphia in the very near future.

HE PAID HIS BILL

Winburne Girl Frightened Stranger into Submission.

On Monday at 6:30 a. m. a well-dressed stranger walked into the restaurant of A. L. Davis at Winburne and called for fried ham, eggs, coffee and pie. The order was served, and after it was disposed of, was duplicated, including a bottle of pop to rinse down the meal.

Mr. Davis and son had gone to work at an earlier hour, and Mrs. Davis was lying ill in bed up stairs. The only occupant of the room down stairs was Miss Olie Davis, the eldest daughter, who waited on the stranger.

When he gave the second order for eatables, Miss Davis became suspicious, and slipping quietly up stairs, got her father's revolver. Returning to the lunch room, with the revolver hid under her apron, she waited until the stranger was through eating, who, when he had cleaned up everything in sight, made for the door. Miss Davis stopped him and said, "You have not paid for the lunch!" The stranger laughed and replied, "No, and I don't intend to pay for it." "Well you will pay for it, or I'll blow your head off!" The stranger dropped on his knees, threw up both hands and cried out, "Don't shoot; I'll pay, I'll pay." He then reached into a pocket, pulled out a big fat wallet, filled with bills, and handed Miss Davis the amount due for his breakfast. He then got on his feet, and with a very sheepish look, took a sneak.

It seems that the stranger had been hanging around the restaurant until the men had gone to work, when he entered the same, thinking the women of the house had no protection and through fear would give him his breakfast.—Philipsburg Journal.

Her Dime.

Somebody had given the east side woman a bad dime. It was composed largely of lead. She tried to pass it at several places, but they are wary for some reason or other on the east side. They invariably ring a dime on the counter once or twice and bite it besides. When she got home with the dime it had several holes in it from the pressure of east side teeth. "It is more impossible than ever," she said.

The impecunious man called that evening. He had a dollar with him which was wholly intact–that is to say, it had not been broken.

"I am afraid they'll give me bad money for it," he said upon taking his departure, "over here in these east side cars. Will you change it for me?"

"I shall be delighted," said she.

He called a week later with a grouch.

"You can't seem to get away from the bad money over here on your old east side," he complained. "Somebody or other stung me with an old lead dime that was full of holes."—New Y[illegible]

Convincing the Waiter.

"I have learned how to make the foreign waiters in the restaurants where I eat think I have lived in Europe half a lifetime," said a woman who never dines at home. "I dawdle over my dinner twice as long as anybody else in the place. It requires no effort for me to do that. By nature I eat in the same leisurely manner that I do everything else. Most of my compatriots bolt their food. As a consequence the foreign waiters who are used to leisurely dining regard them with amazed horror.

"'Ah, those Americans!' they exclaim. 'Some day they choke. But as for madame'—meaning me—'well, madame is different. Madame nibbles, she sips, she lingers; therefore she is not as those of common American clay. It takes madame never less than two hours to eat her dinner. That marks her as one of the European elect.'"—New York Globe.

Some Odd Spelling.

Americans, says the London News, employ the word "Britisher," which they invented, in a contemptuous sense. It was a certain Philadelphia wit who is said to have asked his friends what a "Britisher" would mean to convey by the written word "ghoughphtheightteeau." He had to explain to them that, according to the genius of the English language, it meant "potato." Thus: Gh—p, as in "hiccough;" ough—o, as in "dough;" phth—t, as in "phthisis;" eigh—a, as in "neighbor;" tte—t, as in "gazette," and eau—o, as in "beau." This was at least as puzzling as the livery stable keeper's bill which contained the two lines—

PICTURE SHOW REGULA[illegible]S

Factory Inspector Delaney Orders Inspectors to be More Active.

Chief Factory Inspector J. C. Delaney has ordered all deputy inspectors to enforce the State laws requiring safety in booths of moving picture shows and providing ample exits. He was prompted in this by the recent disastrous explosion at a moving picture show at Pittsburg. The order says in part:

"The Pittsburg case points several lessons, to which we should take good heed.

"A single spark, electric or otherwise, is sufficient to set fire to the highly inflammable films in common use. Hence, the great importance of first-class electric wiring and insulation in booths.

"Such combustion is followed by explosion, unless there be adequate ventilation. Hence, the necessity to enforce the requirments as to the ventilation of booths.

"Film explosion generates great expansive force which can be overcome only by superior resistance. Hence, the necessity for strength in the materials and construction of booths.

"You will, therefore, rigidly enforce the statutory requirments set forth in the act. Turn a deaf ear to those who plead poverty or economy as an excuse for their wishing to substitute cheap and dangerous booths for those called for in the law. A person who is too poor or too mean to provide a safe booth should not engage in the moving picture business.

"The Pittsburg case points also to the importance of providing ample means to exit. Hence, you will rigidly enforce, also, the act as to aisles and exits."

MILLIONS IN BENEFITS

Large Amounts Paid From Pennsylvania Railroad Fund.

With a membership of some 138,000 men out of approximately 158,000 employes, the Pennsylvania Railroad System Relief funds paid out in the month of August the sum of $143,696.28. According to the report for August, issued several days ago, there has been paid in benefits since the relief funds were established in 1886 a total of $26,846,644.06.

On the Lines East of Pittsburg and Erie in the month of August payments to the amount of $106,837.03 were made to members of the relief fund. In benefits to the families of members who died $39,782.61 were paid, while to members incapacitated for work the benefits amounted to $67,054.42. The total payments on the Lines East of Pittsburg since the relief fund was established have amounted to $19,584,823.55.

In August, the Relief Fund of the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburg paid out a total of $36,859.25, of which $13,000.00 were for the families of members who died, and $23,859.25 for members unable to work. [illegible] sum of payments of the Relief Fund of the Pennsylvania Lines since it was established in 1889.

The Temptations of Ministers.

"Clergymen are probably subject to more temptations than any other public men, and their greatest dangers lie in the wiles of the fair sex." This is the bombshell which the Rev. William E. Barton, of the Oak Park Congregational Church, Illinois, hurled at an audience of clerical hearers when he addressed the Presbyterian Ministers' Association recently at Chicago. Dr. Barton is widely known as a powerful thinker and a man of forceful character, so that his words caused a decided sensation. He urged pastors always to have a third person present when talking to women members of their flock, and warned them of the dangers of meeting fair worshipers alone, however innocent the circumstances. "It must be arranged," he said, "so that such temptations cannot be placed before us." The minister should be so guarded, he thinks, that the temptations which beset other men shall leave him unscathed. Dr. Barton occupies a prominent place in the religious world. He is known throughout the country as an author, editor, lecturer and eloquent preacher. His broad civic sympathies and his ready pen have made him a much sought-for contributor to popular magazines, while his eloquence has made him a most familiar figure on the lecture platform. From Leslie's Weekly.)

Ready To Award Contracts.

Contracts for the extension of the Franklin & Clearfield division of the New York Central east from Brookville to Clearfield, Pa., are to be awarded about the first of the year, so the contractors can begin actual construction early in the spring. The line from Franklin to Brookville was placed in service last Saturday and a portion of the Pennsylvania and the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg is used to handle through traffic to the East.

It is estimated that about $4,000,000 will be required to complete the line to Clearfield and build the necessary shops, yards and terminals. Officials of the New York Central have just completed an inspection of the Franklin & Clearfield for the purpose of selecting a site for the new shops and yards. It is believed that the new yards will be located near DuBois, Pa., so traffic can be interchanged with the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, Buffalo & Susquehanna, the Pittsburg, Shawmut & Northern and other roads operating in that section.

DRY FARMING CONGRESS

Fifteen Thousand Invitations for Meeting in Montana.

Secretary John T. Burns of the Dry Farming congress, to be held at Billings, Mont., October 26, 27 and 28, has sent 15,000 statistician's report blanks to farmers throughout the world for the purpose of gathering data on the actual results of dry farming this year. These blanks are addressed to members of the congress, directors of experiment stations superintendents of demonstration farms, officers of state agricultural colleges and practical farmers in all the districts of the world where agriculture is being practiced under so-called dry farming systems, or where the climatic conditions are such that dry farming methods could be applied.

Among the objects of the congress, as stated in the official call, are to discuss and compare methods by which the great area of arid land can be profitably utilized under thorough tillage by which the natural rainfall can be conserved; to encourage the use of methods by which, in districts where rainfall is slight, or irrigation water is limited, the actual productive acreage can be increased; to create closer co-operation between the government and state experts in charge of dry farming experimental work and the actual farmers of the arid districts, and to encourage legislation looking to federal and state appropriations for the establishment of more experimental stations, the employment of more field experts and the actual co-operation of all these stations in fixing and maintaining a certain recognized standard of methods for obtaining results from the operation of farms in the arid districts.

Many prominent men are identified with the coming congress and samples of crops raised by "dry farming" will form an interesting exposition, which will be open from Monday until Friday, inclusive, of congress week.

Dr. Wm. E. Barker's Experience in London.

(From the Rochester Times)

Half a century ago there was no city in the world where an eminent specialist had the opportunities that were presented to one in London; realizing this fact Dr. Barker, after graduating from Heidelburg, located in London. His practice grew so rapidly that at the end of five years he established the largest practice of any physician in that city. His practice was confined to chronic cases only in the treatment of rheumatism, catarrh, kidney and bladder diseases. He used one never-failing prescription this same prescription he had written thousands of times; and he had seen patients come into his office on crutches, who said they had been troubled with rheumatism for 15 and 20 years, and after they used this special [illegible] would come walking to his office, as nimbly as a school boy, and thank him for the good he had done them. The Doctor said in an interview that one man about 45 years old came to him one day and said he had been injured while working at the carpenter trade about twenty years before, and had suffered constantly since with kidney trouble. He had tried everything to get relief, but nothing seemed to do him any good. He asked the Doctor if he really knew anything that would cure him, and he told him of a never-failing remedy for all chronic cases like his. He wrote him a prescription and told him to take it for a week and then come and let him know how he was getting along. This man came back to his office in just four days and said he had not felt as well in his life. He also stated that his daughter, whom he had taken out of school because her eyes were too weak to study, and she could hardly see from one of them at all; she had been treated by four eye specialists without relief, and after he had taken this prescription for two days he says he saw it was helping him so much he let her take some of it, and to their great surprise, she improved wonderfully almost from the first dose. He told him that it was only a week's time after she commenced to take the medicine until she could see as well as ever and was able to return to school.

It was not until after hundreds of such remarkable cases had been treated by Dr. Barker with this same prescription that he was prevailed upon in the interest of humanity to allow the wonderful perscription to be put up so that every sufferer could have it at a very small cost. The public can now secure this prescription under the name of Bloodine, at drug stores, or The Bloodine Laboratories, Boston, Mass., will supply a six weeks' treatment, six bottles, for $2.50; 50 cents a bottle, trial bottle and booklet, 10 cents.

Internal Catarrh.

Miss Nora Kelley, R. R. 1, Box 121, London, Ohio, says:

"I write to thank you for the wonderful good your Peruna has done for me.

"I was a sufferer from kidney and other internal trouble for twenty-two years. Two years ago I began to take Peruna and I only took about three bottles and to-day I can say I am a well person."

Could Not Eat Without Suffering.

Mrs. H. A. Weaver, Somerset, Ohio, writes:

"I can safely and truly say that Peruna has been a blessing to me.

"I had catarrh so badly that I had lost the sense of smell and taste.

"I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not eat anything without suffering afterwards.

"My friends advised me to try Peruna. I bought one bottle and was greatly benefited by it, and so I bought one-half dozen bottles, and will say that I am completely cured of stomach trouble and catarrh.

"I cannot say enough for Peruna."

Pe-ru-na Brought Appetite.

Mrs. Selina Tanner, Athens, O., writes that Peruna relieved her of stomach trouble and brought her a good appetite.

Now Has Best of Health.

Mrs. Victoria M. Pickel, 130 E. Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"I have been using Peruna for catarrh, having had a very aggravated case, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs. When I did get the nasal organs opened, the mucus would drop into my throat and make me very sick.

"A friend advised me to take Peruna, and after using four bottles I was cured.

"I have no trouble now, and am happy to say that I am enjoying the best of health and attending to my lodge duties, being a member of the Rebecca Lodge of Odd Fellows.

"I would recommend Peruna to those suffering with the same obnoxious trouble."

Catarrh for Several Years.

Mrs. Alice Bogle, 803 Clinton St., Circleville, Ohio, writes:

"I want to inform you what Peruna has done for me.

"I have been afflicted with catarrh for several years. I have tried different medicines and none seemed to do me any good until I used Peruna. I have taken six bottles and can praise it very highly for the good it has done me.

"I also find it of great benefit to my children."

MAKE SCHEDULE TIME

Penna. R. R. Passenger Trains Have Great Record in August.

Reports just compiled by the Pennsylvania Railroad show that of the 46,907 passenger trains operated by it in the month of August 42,576, or 90.9 per cent., made schedule time.

Owing to the heavy suburban travel in the vicinity of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Maryland Divisions lead in the number of trains operated. With a total of 16,043 passenger trains running over those three divisions in August, 14,953, or 93.2 per cent., of them made schedule time.

In August the Philadelphia Division operated 5,680 passenger trains - a greater number than operated by any other division. The Pittsburgh Division was second with 5,215; the Maryland Division operated 5,148 passenger trains; the Amboy Division 4,789, and the New York Division 3,380.

Of the twenty-five divisions of the Pennsylvania Railroad East of Pittsburg and Erie, fifteen had records of more than 90 per cent. of trains making schedule time. The Cresson Division had a percentage of 99, the Conemaugh Division 98.9. and the Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and Shamokin Division over 97 per cent.

The Late Crops.

Bradstreet's weekly report, discussing late crops, says: Corn harvesting is general, frost damage is slight and the crop will be slightly larger than expected a short time ago, though not a record-breaker. Conditions for fall plowing and seeding are good, farmers are active and a large area in winter wheat is looked for. Reports that farmers are holding wheat but selling corn are practically universal. Late reports merely reiterate reports that the cotton crop is short, and most sections report the lowest condition in years. The crop is opening rapidly, and apparently, judging from the movement returns, is being marketed more rapidly than in the largest crop years.

High prices encourage southern interests and help to offset the small yields indicated.

Late reports from the potato crop in Aroostook county, Maine, are less favorable, owing to excessive rains.

Curing Cold in Advance.

We get sick because we are too lazy to keep well, according to Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion for October. We are always looking for short cuts to health. Of reputed cures for coughs and cold, he says:

"Their name is literally legion, for [illegible] thing can be mentioned, hardly a substance discovered, which is capable of either being swallowed or inhaled, that has hot been recommended as a cough remedy. Eight tenths of all colds are mild infections, which run their course until the body has time to produce an antitoxin or antibody to stop their further progress. As this process in reasonably healthy individuals is usually carried out in from four to six days, anything which happens to be given in that time stands a fair chance of getting a reputation as a cure.

"The only sure cure for colds and coughs is to avoid the infections and the foul air of ill-ventilated rooms and buildings in which they breed; to keep the body toned up to fighting pitch, by cold baths and an abundance of fresh air, especially in the bedroom; and if the infection does get a foothold to assist Nature in her fight against it by rest in the open air, and promoting elimination through the skin, bowels and kidneys.

"In fine, don't tinker with symptoms; look for the cause, and remove it. Don't try to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen, but train your horse to bite strangers. Attack is the best defense. Keep your body at good fighting weight, and you can defy disease. Sunlight, food, fresh air and exercise are the only cure-alls known. Don't worry about disease and what to take when you're sick, but work for health."

HER SCARECROW.

He Proved to Be Even Good Enough For a Husband.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Olida walked down the green aisle of waving corn. The long green leaves flickered high over her sunny head, and the sound of the wind sweeping through the ten acre cornfield was like the roaring swell of the ocean in her ears.

Now and then she tore a plump ear from the juicy stalks and thrust it in her splint basket. She did this leisurely, for it was yet early morning, and there were hours before dinner, and she loved to walk in the corn.

The rustle of the leaves drowned all other sounds, and thus it was that she came suddenly upon a man crouching on the ground before her. As her pink skirts came into his range of vision he leaped to his feet and stood, half turned for flight.

The girl grew white with sudden fear and in her turn made as if to run away. The man's face lost its strained intensity and relaxed for an instant. She saw that he was young and good looking and that he was afraid of something.

"What do you want? Why are you here?"

"They're after me," he said grimly.

"Who?"

"The constables."

"What have you done?" She did not shrink away from him as he expected she might do.

"Nothing at all—if you will believe me! The Laurelton railroad station was robbed last night, and it seemed necessary to arrest some one on suspicion. As a matter of fact, I'm one of the faculty of the Moreton school, and I'm taking a walking tour through New England.

"I submitted to arrest, but on my way to the lockup my gorge rose at the thought of the unnecessary ignominy to be thrust upon me, so I broke away and lost myself in this field. I suppose they will get me in the end, for I am dog tired now."

"I THOUGHT YOU MIGHT TAKE IT DOWN AND PUT ON THE CLOTHES."

She lifted her troubled eyes to his and read truth in their steady brown depths.

Something black came into view among the stalks and then disappeared. For an instant she started and then laughed. Involuntarily the stranger's face relaxed into a smile.

"They will trace you by your clothes—your appearance?" she asked quickly.

He glanced down at his plain gray clothes and nodded assent.

"Come with me." She led the way through the corn, and he followed her, starting back with a muttered ejaculation as a black coat sleeve came into view.

"It's nothing—it's only one of the scarecrows in the corn," she reassured him. "I thought you might take it down and put on the clothes—they're black—and the hat is different. They're all clean. You see, they've been out in the rain and"— She hesitated.

"That's a glorious idea of yours," he said gratefully. He pulled the man of straw from the post and tore away the tattered garments.

"Now"— he said, but she had rustled away toward her basket, and he heard her plucking juicy ears in the distance.

When he came toward her with his gray clothes on his arm he forgave her the smile that lurked about her red lips.

"The truly great are modest," he said, looking quizzically at the torn and shrunken garments that were distributed more or less effectively over his large frame. "And now how shall I thank you?"

"By making good your escape," she said quickly. "We don't want to make a failure of it now. Give me your gray clothes. There—I'll put them in the bottom of my basket, and some day when it's all over you may come for them. Now follow this row down to the open field. Cross that to the orchard, and in one corner among the apple trees there is the shed where we sort apples for market. In the loft overhead there is clean straw where you can sleep till night, when it will be safe for you to go on. Goodby!"

In an instant she was gone and he was alone in the rustling corn. He heard the distant shout of a man's voice and another voice in reply. Then he turned and went swiftly down the green alley toward the orchard.

* * * * * * *

November winds were whistling through the lifeless stalks now gathered into great shocks over the stubbly field. Alida walked slowly over the brown earth, drinking in the tang of the coming frost and the zest of the dying year.

Suddenly she came upon the place where she had met the fleeing stranger whom she had aided in the midsummer. She looked at the fantastic figure perched on a shock of corn, and her lips parted in a joyous laugh.

"It is you—you have come back?" she asked.

The scarecrow man grinned happily. "I came back for my clothes," he admitted.

Alida flushed under the brown of her cheek. "They are in the house. I told mother about you. We have been expecting you to come back."

"I am glad of that," he said simply. "You saw the papers after I escaped? You know that I spoke the truth to you that day. They captured the real criminal." He regarded her steadily.

"I read all about it, and we were very glad."

"Thank you. And I hope you were not annoyed that day you met the constable and his men." He was standing beside her, looking down at her sweet face with a certain earnestness in his own that had never been there before.

"Yes; I met them and told them I had seen one man and that he looked like a scarecrow." She laughed and added mischievously, "The constable said that couldn't be the man because he was looking for a dude."

They laughed in unison as the stranger picked up a suit case and prepared to follow Alida toward the farmhouse.

When they were in sight of the comfortable dwelling the man stopped and looked wistfully at the girl beside him.

"Do you know, I rather hate to part with these 'scarecrow garments.' They have served me more than one good turn."

"More than one?" repeated Alida, faltering.

"More than one," with an enigmatic smile. "So with your permission I shall carry them away with me, that once in awhile I may come back and play the scarecrow as I did this morning."

"We shall not need a scarecrow until next May, when the corn is up, but you might come and practice."

And so it happened that when the following August came and the rustling corn formed arching green alleys Alida and the scarecrow man walked together in the cornfield.

"And you do not object to having a scarecrow for a husband?" he was saying tenderly, her hand lost in his grasp.

"No, indeed!" blushed Alida happily.

Chairs.

Carlyle wins glory still with his reflections about clothes. Why has the chair never tempted essayists to rival "Sartor Resartus?" It, too, may reflect authority. It, too, changes with salary and station. The swivel gives orders to the high desk stool. The straight back chair of the stenographer differs much in meaning from the ampler piece of furniture which stands before the roll top desk. In a wheel chair the child may see the world, and after his pilgrimage, now an aged man, he may collect a little air. There are the chair of state and the electric chair of execution. The empty chair is a metaphor for all that is most tragic in our lives. What are the dreams of the artist's stool and what of the milkmaid's and which signify the more? How the rocking chair has been written about and despised by the haughty traveler from abroad and how firm it stands, a great American conquest in domestic comfort! Around the chair also and the attitude in which we sit lie associations of mental state:

The editor sat in his sanctum, his countenance furrowed with care,
His mind at the bottom of business, his feet at the top of a chair.

When does thought come best from seat of ease and when from the severer bench on which the schoolboy of old was wont to sit? You get the idea. Now go ahead with the immortal essay. All you need are concentrated thought and literary genius.—Collier's.

Queer Postoffices.

Odd means of collection of mail in various regions are still in vogue. At Fulness, a little island off the coast of England, there is set up what the British call "a pillar box," from which collections of mail can be made only when the tide shall permit, a notice to which effect is posted above the box. This result of the "necessity of invention" came about by reason of the fact that the place in question is reached by road from the town of Wakering only when the tide is very low.

There is a curious postoffice in Canada. It is situated in Lake Wabigoon, Ontario. It consists of a wooden box or trough fastened to a pole standing upright in a shallow portion of the lake. A steamer drops in this box such letters as may be carried for that region on her return voyage, and a canoe is sent out from the shore to collect them, at the same time leaving the outgoing mail ready to be taken up by the next vessel that passes outward.

The fishermen of the Grand banks have often employed a peculiar sea postoffice. This in the form of an open barrel lashed on a raised platform of crossed spars attached to a stationary buoy. Letters wrapped in oilskin are dropped into the barrel by passing trawlers and collected by others returning and reposted on landing.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing amendments to sections eight and twenty-one of article four, sections eleven and twelve of article five, sections two, three, and fourteen of article eight, section one of article twelve, and sections two and seven of article fourteen, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, and providing a schedule for carrying the amendments into effect.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following are proposed as amendments to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment One—To Article Four, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight of article four of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney General during pleasure, a Superintendent of Public Instruction for four years, and such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen, during the recess of the Senate, in the office of Auditor General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office at the next general election, unless the vacancy shall happen within three calendar months immediately preceding such election, in which case the election for said office shall be held at the second succeeding general election. In acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and, in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal," so as to read as follows:—

He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney General during pleasure, a Superintendent of Public Instruction for four years, and such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen during the recess of the Senate, in the office of Auditor General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office, according to the provisions of this Constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office. In acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and, in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal.

Amendment Two—To Article Four, Section Twenty-one.

Section 3. Amend section twenty-one of article four, which reads as follows:—

"The term of the Secretary of Internal Affairs shall be four years; of the Auditor General three years; and of the State Treasurer two years. These officers shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the State at general elections. No person elected to the office of Auditor General or State Treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms," so as to read:—

The terms of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, the Auditor General, and the State Treasurer shall each be four years and they shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the State at general elections but a State Treasurer, elected in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine shall serve for three years, and his successors shall be elected at the general election in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and in every fourth year thereafter. No person elected to the office of Auditor General or State Treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms.

Amendment Three—To Article Five, Section Eleven.

"Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, justices of the peace or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs and townships at the time of the election of constables by the qualified electors thereof, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the Governor for a term of five years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district," so as to read:—

Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, justices of the peace or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs or townships by the qualified electors thereof, at the municipal election, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the Governor for a term of six years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district.

Amendment Four—To Article Five, Section Twelve.

Section 5. Amend section twelve of article five of the Constituton, which reads as follows:—

"In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be five years and they shall be elected on general ticket by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of the said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen; they shall be compensated only by fixed salaries, to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by law. In Philadelphia the office of alderman is abolished," so as to read as follows:—

In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be six years, and they shall be elected on general ticket at the municipal election, by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of the said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen; they shall be compensated only by fixed salaries, to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by law. In Philadelphia the office of alderman is abolished.

Amendment Five—To Article Eight, Section Two.

Section 6. Amend section two of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"The general election shall be held annually on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto," so as to read:—

The general election shall be held biennially on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto: Provided, That such election shall always be held in an even-numbered year.

Amendment Six—To Article Eight, Section Three.

Section 7. Amend section three of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"All elections for city, ward, borough and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be held on the third Tuesday of February," so as to read:—

All judges elected by the electors of the State at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election, as circumstances may require. All elections for judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and for county, city, ward, borough, and township officers for regular terms of service, shall be held on the municipal election day; namely, the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each odd-numbered year, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto: Provided, That such election shall always be held in an odd-numbered year.

Amendment Seven—To Article Eight, Section Fourteen.

Section 8. Amend section fourteen of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen biennially, by the citizens. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service," so as to read:—

District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen biennially, by the citizens at the municipal election; but the General Assembly may require said boards to be appointed in such manner as it may by law provide. Laws regulating the appointment of said boards may be enacted to apply to cities only: Provided, That such laws be uniform for cities of the same class. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service.

Amendment Eight—To Article Twelve Section One.

Section 9. Amend section one, article twelve, which reads as follows:—

"All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this Constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law," so as to read:—

All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this Constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law: Provided, That elections of State officers shall be held on a general election day, and elections of local officers shall be held on a municipal election day, except when, in either case, special elections may be required to fill unexpired terms.

Amendment Nine—To Article Fourteen Section Two.

Section 10. Amend section two of article fourteen, which reads as follows:—

"County officers shall be elected at the general elections and shall hold their offices for the term of three years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law," so as to read:—

County officers shall be elected at the municipal elections and shall hold their offices for the term of four years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law.

Amendment Ten—To Article Fourteen Section Seven.

Section 11. Amend section seven, article fourteen, which reads as follows:—

"Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five and every third year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioner or county auditor shall be filled by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled," so as to read:—

Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven and every fourth year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioner or county auditor shall be filled by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled.

Schedule for the Amendments.

Section 12. That no inconvenience may arise from the changes in the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and in order to carry the same into complete operation, it is hereby declared that—

In the case of officers elected by the people, all terms of office fixed by act of Assembly at an odd number of years shall each be lengthened one year, but the Legislature may change the length of the term, provided the terms for which such officers are elected shall always be for an even number of years.

The above extension of official terms shall not affect officers elected at the general election of one thousand nine hundred and eight; nor any city, ward, borough, township, or election division officers, whose terms of office, under existing law, end in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and ten the municipal election shall be held on the third Tuesday of February, as heretofore; but all officers chosen at that election to an office the regular term of which is two years, and also all election officers and assessors chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven. All officers chosen at that election to offices the term of which is now four years, or is made four years by the operation of these amendments or this schedule, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. All justices of the peace, magistrates, and aldermen, chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifteen. After the year nineteen hundred and ten, and until the Legislature shall otherwise provide, all terms of city, ward, borough, township, and election division officers shall begin on the first Monday of December in an odd-numbered year.

All city, ward, borough, and township officers holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of December of that year.

All judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and also all county officers, holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January, one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

Not What He Expected.

A doctor in a Yorkshire village lately gave up his house and was succeeded in it by a veterinary surgeon. Before he had been many weeks in his new home the "vet" was awakened in the early hours of a rather bleak spring morning. Opening the window, he heard a voice call out of the darkness:

"Can you come with the [illegible] mister? She's very bad."

The surgeon dressed and found a trap waiting to take him to a farm two or three miles away from the village. On the way he asked a few questions about the case he was to attend.

"I'm afraid there's very little hope for her," said the farmer. "She's been ailing now, you see, for ten years, and she's getting pretty old as well."

Annoyed at being called out at such an hour to see an obviously not very valuable animal, the veterinary surgeon exclaimed, "Why on earth don't you shoot her?"

"What!" exclaimed the farmer. "Shoot my mother!"

Then the "vet" understood that it was the previous tenant who was wanted.—London Tit-Bits.

Scene—Stable of Scottish village inn. Landlord is busy repairing a piece of harness and is carrying on at the same time a conversation with the village blacksmith. Enter farmer.

Farmer—Look here, landlord! Can ye gie me a bottle o' yer best whisky?

Landlord—Weel, ye see, the horses are a' out, an' I dinna ken when ony o' them 'll be hame.

Farmer—It's no a horse I want; it's a bottle o' whisky.

Landlord—Aye; but, ye see, they're a guid bit awa', an' it'll be late before the first o' them's back.

Farmer (louder)—I tell ye, it's no' a horse, but a bottle o' whisky. I want.

Landlord—Weel, ye see, the beasts 'll be tired, an'—

Farmer—Gang awa' wi' ye an' yer beasts!

Exit.

Blacksmith—Man, John, ye're gettin' as deaf as a doorpost. It wasna' a horse, but a bottle o' whisky, the man was askin' for.

Landlord—Ou, aye, I heard him fine, but he didna' pay for the last bottle he got.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Order of the Bath.

The last Knights of the Bath made according to the ancient forms were at the coronation of Charles II., when various rites and ceremonies, one of which was bathing, were enforced.

According to Froissart, the court barber prepared a bath, and the candidate for membership in the order, having been undressed by his esquires, was thereupon placed in the bath, his clothes and collars being the perquisites of the barber. He was then removed from the water to the words "May this be an honorable bath to you" and was placed in a plain bed quite wet and naked to dry. As soon as he was quite dry he was removed from the bed, dressed in new and rich apparel and conducted by his sponsors to the chapel, where he offered a taper to the honor of God and a penny piece to the honor of the king. Then he went to the monarch and, kneeling before him, received from the royal sword a tap on the shoulder, the king exclaiming, "Arise, Sir ——," and then embraced him, saying, "Be thou a good knight, and true."—London Strand Magazine.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. S. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve it—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. More often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no other effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and son, aged 15 were always subject to sick headache until we began using these Pills, and they have broken them up entirely. Don't think they have had to use them for six months. I recommend them to every one. A few weeks ago I heard an old lady friend was sick. I went to see her. She was down with LaGrippe, and nearly crazy with awful backache. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills and left another for her to take in a short time. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again. Last winter my husband was taken with pluerisy on both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the Pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and went to bed and slept."

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Duty of The Voter.

The result of the elections in Pennsylvania this year will be of more than State significance. It will be of National importance. The Republican ticket should be elected by an unprecedented majority for unusual reasons. The enactment of the Payne tariff law was a vindication for Pennsylvania's uncompromising Republicanism. Last year no other State gave the Republican National ticket so large a majority. No other State sent to the Sixty-first Congress so many Republican Representatives. No other State was so conspicuous as Pennsylvania in the enactment of tariff revision legislation. No other delegation in Congress resented more effectively the intrusion of false economic theories as a subtitute for sound Republican doctrine. From no other State was there a more urgent demand for the continuance of the protective system. Pennsylvania will be the principal beneficiary of the new tariff rates. They will bring prosperity to all classes of her people. The Republican party responded to the demands of the Keystone State for legislation that would enable it to maintain its industrial supremacy. Throughout this great Commonwealth is hope, optimism, activity. The Republican party has established a reconstructed tariff system which has restored prosperity, which protects the wage earner, provides for our markets abroad, as well as at home, and removes from business the blight of tariff agitation.

It is the duty of every man in this [illegible] the protection of the labor of the country from competition with the miserably paid labor abroad, to record at the polls his approval of the work of the Republican majority in the Sixty-first Congress. A reduced Republican majority in Pennsylvania this year will bring hope and encouragement to those who oppose the Republican system of protection and advocate Democratic tariff revision. It will provide self-styled "progressive" exponents with an excuse for projecting tariff agitation with its distressing influences into the commercial and industrial organization of this country. An overwhelming majority for the Republican ticket will emphasize Pennsylvania's appreciation of the splendid service of her representatives in Congress in her behalf and proclaim to the country her unfaltering allegiance to the principles of the Republican party.

A vote for the Republican ticket will be a vote for the advancement of Pennsylvania and the nation.

A Good Man to Defeat.

It will come to the knowledge of the public with something akin to a shock that Cyrus LaRue Munson, Democratic nominee for associate justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, is actually making a tour of the state in search of votes. Mr. Munson is represented by the leading Democratic newspaper of the commonwealth as finding a "very hopeful feeling among Democrats everywhere." This feeling is predicated upon the fact (?) that the "farmers in three-fourths of the state are in distress over the failure of their crops and listen with impatience to the arguments of Republicans."

Mr. Munson ought to know very well that it is not good form for a candidate for judiciary honors to make an active campaign like aspirants for other public positions do. That kind of thing may be tolerated in some counties, where the issue is local and the contest close and bitter, but it is never admirable, and certainly is not to be countenanced on the part of one who asks to be elevated to the highest court in the state. As if indulging this questionable form of campaigning were not bad enough, however, what shall be thought of a would-be supreme judge who permits such a reflection upon the intelligence of the farmers as quoted above? Mr. Munson should admonish his friends and newspaper supporters to display better judgment. It is preposterous to suppose that any farmers would charge the prolonged dry season of this year and consequent shortage in crops to the Republican party and it is silly to assume that men of brains and common sense would make such an incident the basis for shifting party allegiance and electing a Democrat to the supreme bench in a state as largely Republican as Pennsylvania is. In all the history of state politics we have never observed anything so utterly foolish and futile as this effort to attract attention to Mr. Munson's pecular claims to distinction. Pittsburg Gazette Times.

A Cowardly Slander.

Nothing could be more cowardly than the slander on Judge Robert von Moschzisker in the "Democratic Watchman" of last week. Under the caption "A Recreant Public Official" it virtually charged him with criminal complicity as an Assistant District Attorney in the conduct of the Salter trial, in Philadelphia, several years ago. Too cowardly to make the direct charge that Judge von Moschzisker actually did so, the "Watchman" presented the matter in such a light as to lead the public to believe that he, as a public official, aided in the acquittal of the notorious Salter and that as a reward he was elected to the Philadelphia bench.

The "Watchman's" attack on Judge von Moschzisker is as despicable and unfounded as was its charge that he declared the 2-cent railroad fare law unconstitutional to please the corporations, when in fact that case was never before him.

During the period in which the editor of "The Republican" was associated with the Philadelphia "Press" he reported the proceedings incident to the Salter ballot box stuffing case. Judge von Moschzisker had nothing whatever to do with the case. He was never called into consultation during the preparation of the case and had no part in the trial. In fact he only appeared in the court room for about five minutes during the entire course of the case, and then sat in the audience.

At the time of the trial Judge von Moschzisker was third assistant to District Attorney John Weaver. While the Salter case was on trial he was engaged in trying cases in another court room.

The Philadelphia "Ledger," in an attack on the Republican organization some time after the Salter trial, included Judge von Moschzisker's name in regard to the case. Judge von Moschzisker promptly demanded a retraction. This the "Ledger," after full investigation, cheerfully accorded him. We quote from the "Ledger":

> "The Public Ledger, in a series of articles on the Organization, last Sunday devoted a chapter to the Salter case, in the course of which the name of Judge von Moschzisker was introduced. Judge von Moschzisker was the Third Assistant District Attorney at the time of the trial; further inquiry, however, develops the fact that it was not his duty to investigate the personnel or antecedents of the jury, and that he had no connection with the Salter case. We deeply regret having been led into this error."

If there is a spark of honesty and manhood in the "Watchman" it will be just as prompt as was the Philadelphia "Ledger" to retract its false and libelous statement in regard to Judge von Moschzisker.

Instead of his being recreant in his official duties as an Assistant District Attorney Judge von Moschzisker was courageous and indefatigable in the prosecution of cases. It was toward the close of his service that a clique of school directors were arrested and placed on trial for extorting small bribes from young women who were applicants for positions as teachers. He was associated with this case and his work commanded the admiration of the bar and the public. Indictments were ordered drawn that they might be submitted the next day to the grand jury without a previous arrest. von Moschzisker kept the indictment office and corps of stenographers working all night and the following morning preparing the bills against the three school directors. After a bitter fight he had his indictments sustained.

In the conduct of the trial he was assigned a leading part. He not only opened the case but made the summing up address to the jury and argued all the points of law. Due largely to his work the defendants were convicted and sent to prison. Later he argued and sustained the conviction on appeal.

This, then, is the von Moschzisker so viciously and cowardly maligned by the "Watchman." We offer no apologies for him, either as to his private or public life. His record in the past is the best guarantee that his service on the bench of the Supreme Court will more than justify every vote in his favor at the polls in November.

It might be noted that Judge von Moschzisker, as a nominee for the Supreme bench, is displaying the dignity one naturally associates with that high post and is not leading a barn-storming tour over the State. He is practicing what his opponent preaches but fails to practice, that the office should seek the man and not the man the office.

Death on the Guillotine.

Sardou, in order to be present at the execution of Tropman in January, 1875, spent the night before with La Roquette, the prison director. In his description he says: "At daybreak the guests went out upon the cold, bleak execution place, where the guillotine had already been erected. The bedraggled crowd, which had spent the night in drinking places, sang ribald songs and from time to time shouted for Deibler, the executioner, who meanwhile was explaining the mechanism. The basket in which the head was to drop was brought, and while looking at it I was horrified to see the lid arise and a human form emerge. 'Don't worry,' said Deibler, with a smile; 'that is only my wife, who wanted to see the execution, and I chose the simplest way to secure a good place for her.'" Clemenceau saw Emile Henry decapitated on May 22, 1894, in his capacity as a journalist, and, describing how the culprit was dragged to the machine, strapped upon the plank and there tortured by awaiting the pleasure of Deibler till the knife finally ended it all, said that the "horror of it" made him sick.

Why Blinds Were Drawn.

The Edinburgh landlady of the seventies who astounded James Payn by her stern determination to have the blinds drawn closely down on the Sabbath was but carrying on the traditions of her great-grandparents. The Scot of the early eighteenth century had a reason for drawing his blinds on Sunday. Mr. Thompson in his "Weaver's Craft" gives it. "Sometimes the minister himself," he wrote, "when he got a colleague to preach for him would make the rounds, accompanied by an elder, to spy with his own eyes the sins of the absentees. Here one man is found romping with his bairns, another as the minister peeped through the window was detected kissing his wife, two men were found drinking ale, and one was found with his coat off, as if he were going to work, and still another was seen eating a hearty dinner. All were pulled up before the session of the kirk and repentance forced upon each."—London Standard.

Bread and Cheese.

A couple advanced in years got married lately.

The husband had a room in the house securely locked, the inside of which his wife had never seen, and, being curious of its contents, she begged again and again to see the room.

At last he consented, and, lo and behold, the room was full of whole cheeses!

He explained matters by telling her that for every sweetheart he had in his young days he bought a cheese.

His wife began to cry.

"Don't cry, dear," he said. "I've had no sweethearts since I met you."

"It's not that," she replied, still sobbing. "I only wish I had been as thoughtful as you and bought a loaf of bread for every man that kissed me. We could have had bread and cheese enough to last us all our days."—London Tit-Bits.

Trouble For Creditors.

Even the simplest law transactions seem to be beyond the comprehension of some people. An old farmer went into a grocer's shop a short time ago, ordered a sovereign's worth of goods and when they were ready for delivery laid down a five shilling piece in payment thereof.

The shopkeeper called out, "Here, this isn't right!" as the customer started to leave.

"Oh, yes, that's all right," replied the man. "I've got permission from the judge to pay 5 shillings in the pound."

A heated discussion revealed that the man had lately settled an insolvency upon this basis and expected to continue that method indefinitely. When he was shown his mistake he was very indignant and evidently considered himself a much abused man.—London Globe.

She Wasn't Superstitious.

"Mary, Mary," cried Mrs. Johnson to her maid, "what shall I do? I've just had a most dreadful accident and don't know what's going to happen. I've broken my new hand glass, and you know how unlucky it is to break a looking glass. It means seven years' unhappiness."

"Lor,' mum," replied Mary, "don't you set no heed on that. Look at me. I'm not fretting, and I've just broken the large pier glass in the drawing room."—London Fun.

Leftover Material.

Barbara, aged four, had always been allowed to make small cakes out of the scraps of dough left from the morning's baking, so one morning after being sent to gather the eggs she came running in with a very tiny one and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, see this little egg! It must be that's all the dough the hen had left!"—Delineator.

Ups and Downs.

"The world is full of ups and downs," quoted the wise guy. "That's right," agreed the simple mug. "We are either trying to live up to a good reputation or trying to live a bad one down."—Philadelphia Record.

A Piano Club.

Mrs. Hutton—We are organizing a piano club, Mr. Flatleigh. Will you join us? Flatleigh—With pleasure, Mrs. Hutton. What pianist do you propose to club first?—Chicago News.

Better Left Unsaid.

Hostess—It's beginning to rain. You'll get wet. I think you'd better stay to dinner. Departing Guest—Oh, dear, no! It's not raining so badly as all that.—Sydney Bulletin.

Persian Cities.

Teheran, Persia's capital, is one of the least interesting cities of that ancient land. The houses are mean, the streets narrow and dirty, and even the palace of the shah is far from being a thing of beauty. It has no history worth mentioning and is only redeemed by the birth of Haroun-al-Raschid in a neighboring village. Its importance comes from the presence of the court, but it undergoes a sad decadence in summer, when the unhealthful climate drives the greater part of the population to more sanitary places.

Ispahan, the former capital of Persia, is far different. That city was once girdled by a wall of twenty-four miles, and Shah Abbas in the sixteenth century loaded it with magnificence. It contains splendid mosques and ancient palaces which appeal to the imagination. But Ispahan, too, has fallen upon evil days.

"Houses, bazaars, mosques, palaces, whole streets," writes a traveler of a few years ago, "are to be seen in total abandonment, and one may ride for miles without meeting with a single living creature except perhaps a solitary jackal looking over a mall or a fox running to his hole."

The Smithy Settled It.

One of the candidates at an English election was announced to address a meeting in a Yorkshire village well known to horse dealers and breeders as the center of a district noted for its hackneys and roadsters. The candidate was an eloquent speaker, but for some reason or other he failed to make any great impression on the horse loving farmers. However, the local blacksmith came to the rescue by summing up the respective merits of the rival candidates in the following laconic little speech:

"Friends, this feller"—the candidate—"rides a 'oss. T'other feller rides a mortycar. You breeds 'osses, an' I shoes 'em, so wot is theer to argy aboot?"

In such a district and before such an audience the brief, businesslike speech of the blacksmith was not without effect, for it touched the pockets as well as the hearts of those present.—London Mail.

Poison In the Middle Ages.

In the middle ages so little was known of toxicology that all sudden and mysterious deaths were attributed to poison, but in the light of modern knowledge many of these, says the British Medical Journal, are now easily explained by such diseases as appendicitis and gastric ulcer. Even the Borgias can be absolved from many of the poisonings laid to their charge. Nevertheless from early times in Italy poison was a favorite means of "removing" an enemy. In England, France and Germany crude methods of vengeance prevailed, and it was not until the sixteenth century that the Medici introduced poisoning into France. The fashion spread with terrible rapidity, and poison was employed in every rank of society to get rid of inconvenient persons. The art introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici and her followers took root so deeply as to blossom later into the black magic of Louis XIV.'s reign.

Monuments to Wellington.

Has any British national hero more monuments to his fame in London than Wellington? There is the Achilles statue by Westmascott in Hyde park, cast from cannons taken at Salamanca, Vittoria, Toulouse and Waterloo, at a cost of £10,000, defrayed by "the women of England." The equestrian statue by Boehm at Hyde park corner is the second equestrian statue erected in that locality. The former one, by Wyatt, costing some £36,000, was removed to Aldershot when the arch which it crowned was moved. Then there is the colossal equestrian statue by Chantrey at the west front of the Royal Exchange, the monument by Bell in the Guildhall, the monument by Stevens in St. Paul's, which was over twenty years in hand, and a stone statue by Milnes, erected in the Tower of London near the Waterloo barracks. —London Chronicle.

Flower Gardens of the Sea.

The sea has its flower gardens, but the blooms are not on plants as they are on the land. It is the animals of the sea that make the gardens, the corals of the tropical waters particularly making a display of floral beauty that fairly rivals the gorgeous coloring and delicate grace presented by land flowers. So closely do they resemble plant blooms that it is hard to believe that they are wholly animal in organization. A naturalist says that among the coral gardens there are fishes of curious forms and flashing colors darting about, just as the birds and butterflies dart about plant gardens on land.

Not Much to Make Up.

"Fo' goodness' sake," impatiently exclaimed Mr. Coonley during the poker game, "speak up lively an' say what yo' am a-goin' to do, Mose! Why, it don't take me mo' den two seconds to make up mah mind."

"If it did," replied the player addressed, very deliberately, "you'd suttainly be loafin'!"—New York Sun.

Woman's Face on Stamps.

The picture of Martha Washington may be placed upon one of the postage stamps of the present series.

A number of women prominent in the society of the Daughters of the American Revolution have requested the postoffice department to take such action. It is suggested that the proposed issue of the 12-cent stamp offers an opportunity to do this.

The suggestion is supported on the ground that it would be an appropriate recognition of one-half of the people of the United States, not to mention its merits from an esthetic point of view.

The director of the bureau of engraving and printing has been asked to prepare a model representing Martha Washington's head in addition to one hearing the head of George Washington. Both will have careful attention from Postmaster General Hitchcok on his return from his vacation.

The Mighty Y. M. C. A.

We are glad to see the statement that the Y. M. C. A. roll now shows a membership in North America of almost half a million members and owns $62,800,000 in property. There are nearly 2,000 associations, and 2000,000 of the members are still in their minority. Best of all, 92,000 are students in Bible classes and 47,000 enrolled in night school or other educational work of the association. All honor to the Y. M. C. A. and the strong, earnest and competent Christian men and women who have given to this splendid organization so much of their time, labor and wealth!—From Leslie's Weekly.

Howard.

Editor Dunham, of the Hustler, now has under consideration plans for supplying Bellefonte with a daily newspaper. His idea is to have the news sent from Bellefonte to Howard by his reports at the former place, print the paper here and forward it to Bellefonte on the evening train and have it delivered by carrier. It is Mr. Dunham's opinion that enough subscribers and advertising can be secured to make the proposition a paying one. He says that as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers can be secured he expects to begin its publication.

Edward Casselbery has moved to State College, where he is employed in the boiler house.

Word has been received here of the marriage of Miss Mary Walizer, daughter of Mrs. A. J. Walizer, to Daniel M. Noel, the wedding having taken place last Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage of the Lutheran church in Hollidaysburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Reisch.

Wm. Bland is nursing a sore shoulder as the result of a small piece of rock falling upon him at the clay mines.

Peter Robb, Jr., is now occupying the handsome cottage of Dr. O. W. McEntire, near the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mrs. F. L. Wetzel and children, of Milesburg, visited relatives here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weber and daughter, Miss Nell, left the foreport of the week for Philadelphia, where Miss Weber will attend the Broad street Conservatory of Music.

Miss Grace Schenck, of Milesburg, was home over Sunday.

The moving picture show which was here several days last week was largely attended. The equipment was returned to Bellefonte on Monday where they showed at the fair during the week.

Ex-sheriff Woodring, of Bellefonte, was a caller in town on Monday. We would much rather see him come now than when he was in office.

The regular monthly session of council was held Monday evening, Messrs. Kline, Weber, Pletcher, Schenck, and Thompson being present. Street committee reported streets and crossings repaired, but several walks were too narrow and grade not correct. The street committee was instructed to meet with Jackson Kline at the corner of Main and Walnut streets and make satisfactory arrangements for the regrading of his walk at that point. The water committee reported a break in the water main and that the same was being repaired. The nuisance committee had no report. Dr. O. W. McEntire and J. A. Woodward were granted the use of the borough lamps in front of their respective residences. Action was then taken on the license fee of the show which was held here last week and licenses of people who peddle or canvass, especially tea agents. Bills to the amount of $95 were presented and the same ordered paid.

The death of Mrs. Mary Bechdel is noted elsewhere in this paper.

A large number of our people attended the Centre County Fair at Bellefonte this week. The devotees of horse racing attended each day of the races. The schools will close this (Thursday) afternoon in order to give the pupils an opportunity to attend.

Millheim.

A new concrete walk has been put down on the north and east sides at the hardware store in the Diamond. It was necessary and is quite an improvement.

J. F. Herman of Bellefonte was in town on Monday.

IN MEMORY OF THE LATE HENRY MILLER,

So let him sleep the dreamless sleep,
Our sorrows clustering 'round his head.
Be comforted, ye loved who weep,
He lives with God; he is not dead.
An honored one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our house
Which cannot well be filled.
Rest your labors o'er;
Dream of want and woe no more
Sleep the sleep that knows no breaking
Morn of toil nor night of working.

Unionville.

Joseph Shuman, of Missouri, son of Mary Shuman, who is a sister to Mrs. Samuel Brugar and Mrs. Daniel Hall of this place, has been having his first trip East. He visited New York City during the Hudson-Fulton celebration, and also Niagara Falls, and recently spent a few days at Unionville with friends. He is much delighted with everything and thinks his visit to the Falls would in itself pay him for his trip. He had heard so much of the East from his mother and never saw it. Now he can understand when she speaks of these places and friends. He was entertained at Daniel Hall's while here and on last Sunday a few friends were invited to visit with him, namely, Mrs. Sarah Chaney, of Port Matilda; Mrs. Samuel Brugar and sons Joseph and John, Mrs. Nora Becker, of Philadelphia; Rev. Oyler, his wife and four children, Mrs. Melissa Bing and Miss Mattie Williams. In all it was a delightful little company.

On last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Washington Rumbarger and family were called to attend the funeral of Mrs. Rumbarger's sister-in-law, in Buffalo Run valley.

The Harvest Home and Old Folk's service at the M. E. church on last Sunday was quite a success. The sermon was of a high order and dwelt on the subject of "Life, God given life," and the supreme power of God over man or human agenciel. Many Old Folks were in attendances. Among these were some not members of the congregation including Mrs. Chaney, of Port Matilda; Wm. Iddings, of Huntingdon, and Riley Pratt. Mrs. Turner who is an invalid and must be conveyed in an invalid chair, was also in attendance. She is a valued member of the M. E. church and delights to be there though she cannot walk. The display of fruits and vegetables, of every kind and also flowers, was beyond description. It was the most elaborate and beautiful display we have seen of the kind in Unionville. One head of cabbage was as large as a half-bushel, and was donated by Mrs. John Biddle. The entire rostrum was filled, and the minister very gratefully received all he could carry home with him in his buggy.

Miss Laura Rumbarger has returned from Buffalo Run where she spent last week sewing.

Miss Lydia Way, Miss Alice Sylvis and Miss Lucretia Way spent Sunday with friends here and at Snow Shoe Intersection.

Mrs. David Pratt was very suddenly summoned to the home of her brother in Pittsburg, due to serious illness of their child, fourteen months old, who has developed cholera infantum.

George Lucas and wife arrived here on Sunday evening to attend the Golden Wedding of his brother Edward Lucas and wife, which was celebrated on Monday.

Abednego Williams and wife went to Saltillo, in Huntingdon county, on last Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the Centre Baptist Association, which takes in Blair, Centre, Clinton, Cambria, Huntingdon and Mifflin counties.

Charles Cook and wife spent last Sunday with Mrs. Cook's sister, Mrs. Wm. Alexander.

Miss Hannah Holt, who has recently been quite ill, is again seen on the streets much to the gratification of her many friends.

Blanchard

Mrs. McDowell, of State College, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Snyder.

Mrs. James Shaw returned from her visit to DuBois on Thursday last.

Charles Graham spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Porter Kunes.

Mr. Cramer and wife visited at Philadelphia last week.

A. R. Moon spent a week in New Jersey, Philadelphia and Baltimore taking in the sights.

A surprise party was held at Mrs. John Shaw's on last Friday night, which was attended by quite a few of her friends and neighbors.

C. A. Williams and wife left on Sunday to take in the excursion to Washington and other points.

Mrs. Wilson is visiting her sister, Mrs. Al. Bitner, for a few weeks.

Missionary Romig, of China, gave an interesting lecture on the conditions and habits of the Chinese race, in the Christian church, last Sunday evening.

P. T. McClintick is erecting a new barn on the old Nestlerode place, which he recently purchased.

Mrs. Linnie Sorgy, of Lock Haven, returned to her home after a week's visit at the hospital home of C. A. Williams.

Mrs. Rebecca F. Glossner attended the funeral of her aunt, Miss Fearon, at Lock Haven.

Jean James and Lawrence Nestlerode have gone to work again at Altoona, for the P. R. R., after a year's lay-off on account of the late business depresson.

The Beech Creek brick works are now running day and night, thus giving the men of this community all the work they want. The complaint now is, "Too much work, but we'll vote 'er straight Republican this fall again for luck."

Reminiscent hunting stories are in season now; it will do you good some evening to drop into the store of Capt. Quigley to hear and learn how the boys "in blue" organized their hunting club, camped at the Martin dam and killed their quarry with the greatest ease; you can imagine, almost taste, the meals they prepared which were good enough to set before a King. The old single barrel rifle, leveled by a steady hand seldom failed to do its work. The trusty hound was always ready for the chase; but now where are these mighty nimrods? Almost all passed into the "Great Beyond" is the solemn thought we must carry with us to our homes at the close of a pleasant evening.

Charles Hunter, our genial butcher, has such a reputation for killing first class stock that he can scarcely supply the demand for meat.

We hope for more rain before it winters up as some of the wells are very low.

A goodly nnmber of our people attended the fair this week.

Pine Grove.

Thomas Glenn and wife spent Sunday at the Glenn home, west of town.

C. B. McCormick and John Musser are among the sick.

Grandmother Koch is seriously ill, suffering from an incomplete fracture of the left hip. Owing to her advanced age her life is despaired of.

Miss Maggie Wright, after a month's visit among friends at Tyrone, is back home.

J. F. Weiland, a busy man of affairs, merchant, grain and coal dealer, has been confined to his bed the past week with inflammation of the bowels.

Miss Cora Corl, who has been ill the past two weeks with fever, is convalescing nicely and we trust surely.

W. P. Ard is now enrolled as a Freshman at the Susquehanna University.

John Meene, with his aunt, Anna Miller, came up from Rock View and spent Sunday in town.

J. G. Heberling did not cut the cherry tree like the Father of his country, but cut his left hand with the hatchet.

W. H. Goss is nursing a crippled foot that a horse thoughtlessly trampled upon and mashed.

John Eby and family came down from Altoona in their automobile and took dinner at J. R. Smith's and continued on their journey to Lock Haven. Miss Mable Smith accompanied them, Friday, and returned home on Saturday, delighted with the spin.

Last Sunday jolly Jake Herman and Fred Kaufman spent the day at the J. F. Kimport home, in the South side.

Last Tuesday evening the home of Andrew J. Lytle was the scene of a happy surprise party. Friends came from far and near, bringing many presents and grand things for the inner man. "Andy." is pretty wily but his good wife and cousin, Belle Lytle, managed the surprise to perfection. "Andy." was kindly reminded that it was his sixty-second birthday anniversary and everybody had a delightful time.

Postmaster John W. Stewart was very much indisposed the beginning of the week and unable to look after Uncle Sam's matters. We are glad to note that he is much better now.

Rev. W. K. Harnish attended the Presbytery at Philipsburg this week.

Rev. J. S. Sults is at Lutheran Synod at Blair. His lay-members are Hon. J. T. McCormick and A. J. Tate.

W. K. Corl is hustling his new clover huller and hulling the seed, which is not a big crop.

Last Monday evening State College Lodge No. 1032 I. O. O. F. had its officers installed by D. D. G. M. George J. Graham, who in his usual clever way disposed of the task with neatness and despatch.

The service was followed by a feast and "smoker." Good coffee was served by one of the Rebekahs, Sister Kline. The officers installed follow:

N. G. P. B. Meek,
V. G. A. J. Weibely,
Secretary, C. H. Eby,
Treasurer, Percival Rudy,
R. S. to N. G. , N. N. Hartswick,
L. S. to N. G., J. W. Miller,
Warden, A. Ammerman,
R. S. S. F. J. Kaufman,
L. S. S. W. E. Smith,
O. G., C. C. Messemer,
I. G., A. H. Hartswick,
Chaplain, Milton Shuey,
R. S. to V. G., C. M. Hood,
L. S. to V. G. , Harry Beahrs,
Representative to Grand Lodge, Robert Edmiston,
Representative to Orphanage, P. Rudy.

A very liberal donation was made of valuable and useful articles for the little folks at the Sunbury Orphanage.

Scotia.

While assisting in laying track at the steam shovel on Thursday J. Harris had the misfortune to have a rail fall on his foot, breaking several small bones and causing him to be laid up for several weeks. This is hard luck, especially after being idle so long.

Thursday, September 30, was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Superintendent Harry Valentine. Accompanied by his assistant, William Burnside, who was best man at the wedding, he quietly slipped away to his home at Bellefonte and spent the evening surrounded by his family. His son Stanley, who holds such a desirable position with the H. K. Porter Company, of Pittsburg, was home for the occasion. Here's hoping you live to celebrate the 50th anniversary.

The Sunday visitors were William Birtline and family, of Eden Hill, Huntingdon county; William Murtorff and wife, of State Coliege, and Isaac Lykens, of Gatesburg.

Mrs Charles Douglass, Miss Mary Roop and King Lytle are among the sick.

Rev. Mr. Frank preached a very able sermon on Sunday evening, taking his text from a part of the sixth chapter of Paul's first letter to Timothy.

Farmer Carl Bloom had a very sick horse on Sunday and of course, sent at once for that prince of good fellows Captain W. H. Fry, of Pine Grove Mills. After treating the horse the Captain had his latest story to tell. This time it was on a slow train to New Orleans. Of course it was true, for the Captain was on the train.

The seventeenth birthday anniversary of George Kellerman was made the occasion for a very pleasant gathering at the home of his parents here. A large number of friends from Pine Grove Mills and Scotia called to extend congratulations. George knew nothing of it until it was too late to run, so he stood his ground like a little man.

Since the starting up of the mines the smiling face of Senick Walker, the jolly engineer on the Bellefonte Central freight, may be seen every day, a smile and a wave of the hand being the greeting from his cab window as his engine goes flying past. Senick is a man who looks the world in the face and his motto is "never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you."

Anybody seeing James Williams walking about on Sunday would have thought he had a bad case of rheumatism. He had been taking a little whirl at loading a car of props. Jim. says he will never do it again.

Better Earning Power.

The Pennsylvania State College has five winter courses in agriculture beginning November 30, 1909. The object of these courses is to assist young men in increasing their earning power through study in the State School of Agriculture during the winter months. These courses are devoted to practical instruction in general agriculture, horticulture, dairy husbandry, dairy manufacture and poultry keeping. The student may select any one of the five courses. The mornings are devoted to lectures and recitations, and the afternoons are given to practical exercises, such as live stock judging, corn judging, field study of orchards, green house work, creamery practice, and a score of other lines of practical work, each student dealing with the subject in his own course.

It is the experience of former winter course students that twelve weeks given to association with other students and to study of fundamental principles in the care of soil, plants, animals and dairy products is very helpful. It gives one a better basis for successful work in life. Our well-equipped School of Agriculture, which has 258 men enrolled in its four years' courses, and 77 men in its two years' course, makes special provision for these twelve weeks' courses. Our institution is maintained by the state because it serves those who want to fit themselves for better work. Young men who can give only the winter months to study of agriculture have the same right to aid as that enjoyed by students in longer courses.

A free winter course bulletin gives information concerning the courses. All people interested in a better agriculture may do good by sending us the addresses of young men who should have the benefit of this instruction. There will be room for one hundred and fifty winter course students this year. Address: Alva Agee, Secretary, School of Agriculture, State College, Pa.

Mt. Eagle.

Mrs. Mollie Orchard and son departed on Tuesday morning for Mackeyville, where she is making her home at present.

The farmers are thinking about husking corn.

The stork visited the home of T. J. Lucas a few nights ago, leaving behind a fine, big girl baby. Mother and daughter are doing well.

We had another quite exciting time here a day or two ago. The home of James Smeltzer caught fire but fortunately the flames were discovered and extinguished before any great damage was done.

J. K. Deitz has moved another barn onto the foundations where the old one burned and has it about ready for his stock.

J. K. Baney and family attended the Union county fair at Lewisburg.

Miss Gates spent several days at the home of her parents.

Mrs. David Lucas, of Clearfield, arrived here on Saturday night for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Leathers.

Theophilus Pletcher, who has been on the sick list for some time, is not improving as well as his many friends wish for. Perhaps the cool weather will help him recover his health.

Mrs. Charles McMurtry, of Howard, took supper on Sunday with Mrs. Joshua R. Pheasant.

Miss Anna Dunkle, of State College, cpent Sunday here with her mother.

E. H. Leathers, who has been away since the burning of his handle factory, is home again and preparing to rebuild.

Mr. Deitz, who was also burned out, has resumed business as a huckster.

Pine Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Petrick, of Wilmington, Del., are the guests of the latter's parents of this place.

Lizzie Conoway left on Monday for Winburne, where she will spend a few weeks with her brother, Harry.

Rev. Jones, of Baltimore, former pastor of this place, came on Saturday to accompany his wife home. Mrs. Jones has been visiting her many friends at this place for the past two weeks and we are all sorry to see them both leave so soon. Mr. Jones delivered a fine sermon from our pulpit on Sunday morning.

Preston Mulholland has returned to his work in Curwensville, after spending a few weeks at home.

Mrs. Wm. Meeker and daughter, Martha, and son, Martin, spent part of the week at Spruce Creek visiting her son, Harry.

A number of our young people attended the festival at Karthaus on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vallimont returned on Monday to their home in Watkins Glenn, N. Y., after a short visit at the former's home.

Miss Nellie Lyons, of Lock Haven, is the guest of Hazel Lewis.

C. C. Askey, of Hicks Run, spent last week at his home here.

W. L. Steele, Jr., of Bellefonte, is erecting Robert Askey's new house. Mrs. Steele is visiting her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hipple and family, of Baltimore, are visiting at the home of Wm. Hipple.

Centre Hall.

Many town folks visited the Lewisburg fair on Thursday.

Teller Whippo, right hand man in James Stover's exchange stable, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Nora Bland.

Mr. McNeal took in the Grove City—State foot ball game on Saturday. McNeal is a forester, stationed at Centre Hall.

Mrs. Rosie Richards, of Freeport, Ill., has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kneppley, of this place.

It has been rumored that the Centre Hall Hotel is changing hands April 1. Details are not known at this time.

The reservoir is almost completed and water can again be housed up for future delivery.

Mrs. Lucy Henney has returned from Philadelphia with a neat and nobby line of women's hats.

Miss Anna Bible who resides east of town, contemplates moving to town in the spring.

Joseph Lutz and family attended the funeral of Mrs. John Armagast.

England's Patron Saint.

The story of England's patron saint is surrounded by a mixture of truth and fable which defies definite sifting. He is generally believed to have been born at Lydia, but brought up in Cappadocia, and suffered martyrdom in the reign of Diocletian, A. D. 303. The legend of his conflict with the dragon may have arisen from a symbolical or allegorical representation of his contest with the pagan persecutors. When our crusaders went to the east in 1096 they found St. George elevated to the rank of warrior saint, with the title of the "victorious," and as they believed that they were indebted to him for aid in the siege of Antioch they adopted him as the patron of soldiers. Edward III. was thus led to make him patron of the Order of the Garter, and so gradually St. George became the tutelary saint of England.—London Mail.

OLD QUAKERTOWN STANDS BY PARTY

Businessmen, Manufacturers and Lawyers as Leaders.

REPUBLICAN VICTORY CERTAIN

Representative Citizens of Philadelphia Will Be Important Factors In Rolling Up a Big Republican Majority.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.

Within the last few days the so-called reform movement in this city has been given a serious setback and there is now no doubt that the entire Republican ticket will be elected by a large majority.

The business and professional men of the community have entered into the campaign and have lined up solidly for the Republican candidates.

Some of the most representative merchants and manufacturers have taken the lead in a movement started by the Republican Business Men's association and are calling upon all who desire honest and efficient administration of affairs to support the Republican nominees. Not only will they send out a special appeal to Philadelphians to vote for these candidates, but they are planning for an immense mass meting, at which prominent men will make addresses.

Following the action of the members of this association, there was a meeting of members of the bar, the largest meeting of the kind ever held in this city, at which resolutions were adopted strongly indorsing Samuel P. Rotan, the Republican incumbent, for re-election as district attorney. Over one thousand lawyers have signed an indorsement of Mr. Rotan.

Rotan's Election Conceded.

The effect of the aggressive attitude of the business men and the lawyers was shown in the editorial utterances of the independent newspapers, which have all indorsed the candidacy of Mr. Rotan. The only newspapers backing Gibboney, who is Mr. Rotan's apponent, are the Wanamaker newspapers, with which his political fortunes have been linked ever since he entered the game.

The large registration of voters is explained by the fact that the supporters of the Republican nominees have been unusually active in the several wards and have succeeded in getting a larger number of stalwart Republican voters registered than at any time since the registration law went into effect.

While the Gibboney men are making claims of strength upon the returns from the registration, they are not based upon facts and are part of a campaign of misrepresentation that has been under way since the primaries were held.

Mr. Rotan's public call upon the men who are charging election frauds to submit their evidence that the ballot boxes might be opened, has not been answered, and that issue has ceased to be a factor in the campaign.

The candidates on the state ticket have been receiving ovations wherever they have gone. They spent last week in the northeastern tier and in Mifflin, Union and Snyder counties. They are booked for the opening rally of the campaign in this city tonight, and tomorrow night they are invited to attend the reception to be tendered Senator Penrose by the Workingmen's Protective Tariff League.

Party Lines Are Drawn.

The opposition to the Republican nominees in the state campaign is absolutely confined to the old-time Democracy. The lines are sharply drawn, and Republicans and Democrats are rallying about the standards of their respective parties. There is not a trace of factionalism within the Republican organization. The lines are unbroken and the stalwart Republican hosts will march to the polls in solid phalanx on Nov. 2 and vote the full party ticket.

Judge Robert von Moschzisker, nominee for justice of the supreme court; Senator A. E. Sisson, candidate for auditor general, and former Senator Jeremiah A. Stober, the party's choice for state treasurer, are all men of high standing and command the respect of all who know them.

While the election of all of them is conceded, there is a demand from those who have studied the situation from a broad standpoint for the exercise of special vigilance to guard against the dangers of over-confidence or indifference in the matter of getting out the party vote.

While this is what ordinarily would be classed as "an off year," it is, in fact, a very important year in the political history of Pennsylvania.

With the tariff revisionists already opening their campaign to carry a majority of the next congress, even if it shall be necessary to do so with the aid of Democratic votes, it behooves Republicans, who believe that the present tariff is going to greatly benefit all branches of industry, to by their votes enter an early protest against any and all schemes to reopen the tariff discussion, with the destruction of business interests that would inevitably follow.

What a Dollar Dog Can Do.

A man in a nearby city bought for his wife and child a year ago a dog, for which he paid a dollar. It was obviously nothing wonderful in the canine way—merely a mongrel, with the bulldog strain predominant. The owner was a man in humble circumstances, and the dog in his modest dwelling was the principal asset aside from a few sticks of furniture. The other night Tom was tied to a leg of the kitchen sink, as usual, and the family went to bed. They were awakened by the dog at midnight scratching at his master's door. When his master came out to see what was the matter the dog, with a remnant of chewed rope hanging from his collar, whined and ran to the head of the stairway. The house was on fire, and shortly after woman and child and man and dog made their escape their poor dwelling was a mass of glowing embers. The owner of the dog has been urged to part with him for a large cash consideration; but, though he is penniless, he will not part with the four footed savior of his family. Neither has the dog at any time had thoughts of leaving them for luxurious kennels.—New York Times.

Slaves to the Servants.

"I am very tired," said the fashionably dressed woman. "I have been working dreadfully hard all day. Doing what? Why, seeing to my servants—working for them. Didn't you know that the more servants you have the harder you must work? Certainly I have to do all the shopping for my servants. I have to buy their uniforms, the caps and aprons of the maids, the clothing of the housekeeper, and have to see to the marketing, too—yes, and very often, in spite of the fact that I have a housekeeper. I must, or they will form a combine to rob me of everything I have. The housekeeper will get a rakeoff that will enable her to retire in a few years. Then perhaps it is I who must hunt a place as housekeeper for some one else. Oh, yes, if you want to keep your position as mistress of a household of servants you must keep hustling! You can't afford to let the grass grow under your feet to any great extent."—New York Press.

He Got a Hundred.

Sammy's mother talked to him long and earnestly about the poor marks he had been getting in his work at school. She painted in alluring colors the career of the little boy who studies his lessons and gains the love and respect of his teachers. She went even farther. She promised him that if he got good marks she would give him a whole dime all for his own. Sammy seemed impressed.

That afternoon he returned from school fairly dancing with joy.

"Oh, mother," he shouted, "I got a hundred!"

"Sammy!" cried his delighted mother. She hugged him and kissed him and petted him and—gave him the dime.

"And what did you get a hundred in?" she finally asked.

"In two things," replied Sammy without hesitation. "I got forty in readin' and sixty in spellin'."—Everybody's Magazine.

Trapping the Parson.

William Morris did not always get his jokes right end first. In a biography of her husband, Mrs. Edward Burne-Jones tells of the ease with which he reversed them.

A dinner gathering had all been asking conundrums.

"Who killed his brother Cain?" asked Burne-Jones.

Morris fell into the trap at once. "Abel!" he shouted.

Later in the day he came in laughing.

"I trapped the parson, by Jove!" he exclaimed. "I asked him, 'Who killed his brother Abel?'

"'Cain,' he said at once.

"'Ha!' I said. 'I knew you'd say that. Every one does.' I came away and left him puzzled enough, and I doubt if he's found out yet what the joke was."

Not Qualified.

Two men were getting warm over a simple difference of opinion.

They turned to the third man.

"Isn't a homemade strawberry shortcake better than a cherry pie?" demanded one of them.

"Isn't a homemade cherry pie better than any shortcake?" inquired the other.

The third man shook his head.

"I don't know," he said. "I board."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Tripping Tongue.

"Henry Peck, you're a fool!"

"You didn't seem to think so when I was single."

"No, you never showed what a big fool you were until you married me."—Exchange.

Not an Umpire.

A clergyman startled his drowsy congregation the other day as follows: "My dearly beloved friends, permit me to remind you that I come here to preach, not to act as umpire in a snoring match."

The Explanation.

Fred—There seems to be a lot more fuss made of Miss A.'s singing than Miss K.'s, and I am sure Miss K. has by far the richer voice. Jack—Ah, yes, but Miss A. has by far the richer father.

Made Sure of the Pie.

A young girl who carried her dinner was observed to eat her pie first. When asked why, she replied, "Well, if there's anything left it won't be the pie, will it, now?"

PRIDE OF STATE IS NOW AN ISSUE

Pennsylvanians Glory in Record of Republicanism.

ECHOES OF HOME WEEK FETES

It Is Predicted That the Vote at the Coming Election Will Emphasize Loyalty of Keystone State to Cause of Protection.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Oct. 5.

There has developed in the present political campaign in Pennsylvania a remarkable condition which will unquestionably result in the polling of a large vote for the nominees of the Republican party.

A sentimental phase of the canvass which has been the subject of widespread comment is the outgrowth of "home week" celebrations which have been held recently at different points throughout the commonwealth.

It is manifested in an unusual display of state pride, of love for the grand old commonwealth of Pennsylvania and admiration for its traditions and glorious record.

The home coming of so many former citizens of the state at the gatherings held during the last few months gave an opportunity for the people to contrast conditions in Pennsylvania with those of other states of the Union.

There were comparisons made which could not but reflect credit upon the administration of affairs in this state. Upon every hand there were heard words of commendation of the splendid administration of Governor Stuart and of the conduct of the various departments of the state government which do not come directly under the jurisdiction of the chief executive.

Pennsylvanians Point With Pride.

Pennsylvanians are pointing with pride to the many wise and useful measures passed at the last session of the legislature, among which may be noted the strict laws to prevent the manufacture and sale of adulterated food stuffs and drugs, and for the protection of retail dealers from the crimes of such manufacturers as violate the law, the continued appropriation of the magnificent sum of $10,300,000 for common schools, liberal appropriations for hospitals, charities and public roads, ample provision for the care of the indigent insane, provisions for carrying on with vigor and effect the fight against tuberculosis, and the careful and business-like examination and investigation of institutions receiving state aid.

The passage of the "Jones dirt road bill," giving the respective townships a liberal portion of the road tax paid in cash, and the appropriation for the payment of the 15 per cent formerly allowed, has been the subject of favorable comment in the rural districts.

State Without a Debt.

The fact that Pennsylvania is the only state in the Union which is practically out of debt has been the source of gratification to every citizen of the commonwealth.

It is also the only state in the Union which collects no state tax upon real estate, horses, sheep, cattle, farm implements or other personal property of any kind save only money at interest.

These and the many other conditions in the administration of state affairs commanding general approval are being considered by the voters in the present political canvass.

A Power In National Congress.

When former Pennsylvanians upon visits home from other states, particularly some of the western states, discussed the recent exhibition of the power of Penisylvania in the national halls of congress in the shaping of the tariff legislation, they could not but speak in terms of admiration of the work of Senators Penrose and Oliver and their Republican colleagues in the national house of representatives in protecting the great industrial interests of Pennsylvania, in fostering the farm and dairy interests, in giving special safeguards for the tobacco growers of Lancaster and neighboring counties against foreign competition, and in other ways guaranteeing to the wage earners, capitalists and business men of the state a condition which it is predicted will inaugurate an era of unexampled prosperity.

With Republicans serving the people with extraordinary fidelity, both in state and national offices, the leaders of that party find that the candidates nominated by the recent Republican state convention are meeting with assurances of loyal support upon every hand.

They are accepted as the representatives of the party which has demonstrated its ability and its purpose to administer the affairs of the government in the interest of all of the people and for the common good.

Pennsylvania, according to all reports received here, is going to give an exhibition of civic pride in the vote at the coming election which will herald to the world the fact that the Keystone State continues to be the citadel of Republicanism as well as the home of protection.

"SENORA PANCHITA, you are an angel!" exclaimed Minnie Surrat as the senora handed her the beautiful lace mantilla to wear at a fancy dress ball where she was to appear as a lady from Cadiz. Three other girls who were there joined in the assertion that the senora was an angel, with hopes for their own special needs.

Ida Lovejoy, one of the four girls, opened her lips to say some flattering word, but the words were suddenly checked as her fascinated eyes fell upon a superb solitaire diamond ring which the senora generally wore in memory of the departed General Valdez.

The senora had many other jewels, but she loved this ring best. While the four young girls, boarders in the same house, had been there she had fancied that she ought to have the jeweler look to the safety of the diamond in its setting and so took the ring from her hand and put it on her little ring tree which stood on her dressing table near the window. Its fire and luster dazzled the longing eys of Ida, and she caught her breath. She had often seen it on the plump hand of the senora, but never had it seemed so beautiful as now. She felt a great desire to ask the kind Spanish lady to loan it to her to wear to the ball as she had loaned her valuable lace mantilla to Minnie. If she could wear such a ring perhaps the floorwalker, Charlie Edwards, might take notice of her.

Ida was poor, very poor, and worked in the store where the other girls were employed. She, like all the employees of the store, was expected to be at this ball. The big store gave a ball every winter and an excursion every summer for its employees. Ida had never been able to advance herself somehow, and after three years she was still among the learners. Her salary was scarcely enough to pay her board. And she loved beautiful things.

The supper bell rang, and with a half sigh for the pungent cookery of her own land Senora Valdez locked her door and tried it to be sure and followed the four girls down to the dining room.

Ida kept thinking of the beautiful ring upstairs and wished she might be able to have a lovely costume to wear. She could not eat. Some friends called on the senora, and the other girls went out, so that Ida was more than ever cut off from companionship, and she went up to her room, descending almost at once to the bathroom, where she was going to wash out a few pieces. Her tall, lank figure looked singularly ungraceful and loosely jointed as she came down to the second story. She turned the water on and, letting it fill the tub, went to the window and looked out. There was a light burning in the senora's room.

All her life long Ida had been noted for the length of her arms and a peculiar faculty of loosening her shoulders and stretching them out to an astonishing length. She knew well that by leaning out of the bathroom window she could easily reach that little ring tree. A sudden temptation came over her too strong to resist. The window was open.

She argued swiftly with herself that the Spanish lady had plenty other jewels; that this could not matter so much to any one as to her. She was so tired of the toil and privation. Charlie might love her if he could see her dressed as she ought to be.

Visions of a little home of her own that she could care for and beautify passed before her eyes. She hated the work in the store and longed for a quiet home where she could be at peace.

That ring would scarcely be missed, and it meant so much to her. She listened; no sound. In another minute she had leaned out. Her hand crept along the wall until it touched the swinging mirror and then the ring tree with its sparkling burden.

In another minute she had flown to her room with her wet handkerchiefs and the ring. It had been easy. She had never stolen anything before, and it was so terrible a thing that she was faint and trembled like a leaf. She thought:

"I'll feel better in the morning, and then I'll see."

But no sleep came to her, and in the morning it was all she could do to rise and drag herself to the store. Her eyes were heavy and her head ached She was pale and wan. The very floorwalker to win whose admiration she had stolen stopped and said:

"Miss Lovejoy, are you ill?"

And he looked so sympathetic that Ida's chin quivered and her eyes filled as she replied:

"Just a little headache; that is all."

"You won't be able to dance tonight. Hadn't I better get you excused today? I will if you wish."

"If you please," she said weakly, while she thought, "What if he knew?"

She looked very ill. The diamond that was wrapped in a handkerchief in her bosom seemed to weigh a ton and to burn like redhot iron. She leaned against the shelves with pinched features until he returned with the desired permission.

"Shall I get a cab for you?" he asked kindly.

"I—think—I will walk. The air may do me good. It is so warm in here. Thank you very much."

Ida had beautiful eyes. The floorwalker had often noticed this tall, silent girl with her heavy braids, plainly of her own hair. He was tired of the ridiculous pompadours of the other girls. Her voice was low and sweet, and now it quivered with the emotion that shook her very soul.

She dared not look into his eyes for fear he would know she was a thief. She had not realized what she had done fully until now, but now, knowing it, she trembled.

No thought of the ball entered her mind. If she could only restore the ring!

She crept back to her boarding house and to her room. She heard the girls come home and heard their gay chatter as they were preparing for the fancy ball.

Dimly she remembered that she had intended to pawn that ring and buy a gown she had seen, all silver, like moonlight on still water, and she was going to get a veil of spangled tulle and a tinsel crown, let down her long dark hair and call her costume "Night." All was over now, and she was a thief.

What if the senora caused a search to be made? She must hide it until she could replace it. The window was closed now. Then the supper bell rang. She remembered that she had eaten nothing all that day and went tremblingly down. To her joy the senora was not there, and the other girls were all so full of the ball that her silence passed without comment.

At last all the other girls left the house in gay spirits, leaving Ida alone in her fear, shame and horror of herself.

The night the ring had been stolen Senora Valdez had sought for it everywhere in her room. She knew where she had left it. Nothing else had been taken. She knew that she had put it on the tree and that it was there when she left, for all four of the girls had preceded her, and she had locked and tried the door. She was always very methodical.

"Some one must have a key that fits my door and came in while I was downstairs," she thought.

The senora did as the most of us do and took all her other valuables to the safe deposit vault, but she said no word to any one of her loss.

"If I call the police," she thought, "and have a search made all the innocent will hate me, and I may never find it. If I keep absolute silence and watch some day the one who took it will say some word or do something which will betray him and show me the thief. I wish that it had been any other jewel."

So the senora went to sleep. The next day brought no proof. That any one could have reached the ring tree from the bathroom window never entered her head.

Scarcely had the merry party gone to the ball when there was a ring and a visitor for Miss Lovejoy. She felt as though she must die then as the handsome floorwalker came in.

"I heard you were not going to the ball, so I thought I would come in and see—if you—are better."

"Yes, but I don't care very much for parties or balls." All this while she was wondering why he had come.

"No more do I," said he. "I like quiet better. I think I was cut out for a home lover."

"I think I am, too," said Ida, with a half sob as the memory of her crime surged up in her mind, closing the door of any home for her.

"It seems to me that things were better when women didn't have to go from home to work, and the men did it all, and the women kept the homes."

"Yes," she replied weakly. "It seems as if a home of one's own, no matter how small or poor, should be like heaven"—

"Miss Lovejoy, forgive me if I seem abrupt, but would you care for a home with me? Don't speak yet. I have watched you a long time. You are not like the other girls, silly and frivolous. They think of nothing but dress and nonsense. I have loved you longer than you know. I should not have dared to speak, but I cannot bear that you should remain any longer in that store. It was—is killing you. It is not the life for you. We will have a little home, and you shall be its queen. Will you be my wife—my dear wife?"

Ida gasped for breath, and for one blissful moment she looked at him with ineffable love and joy, and then she sank fainting to the floor.

Charlie went away elated. This very fainting fit from excess of joy over his proposal seemed very right and proper to him. He was sincerely in love with her and would make her a good husband.

For three long days Ida kept her bed. She was on the verge of nervous collapse, the doctor said, but at last she was able to creep downstairs to the parlor to see Charlie, who came daily with flowers and fruit.

The other girls quickly understood the matter and were affected differently. Not one of the girls in that store but would have been glad of his attention.

"Oh, but ain't she the sly puss?" said Minnie, while Adeline replied:

"And she ain't pretty either. I don't see what he finds in her."

At that moment the senora came in just in time to hear Minnie say:

"I think what must have attracted him is her long reach. She can stand flat foot and hand her parcels clear over the partition. I never saw such a long reach, did you?"

IDA BURST INTO A PASSION OF TEARS.

"No; and one day I saw her reach clear around a standard of plumes and take a rose spray and never touch a feather. Her shoulder just seems to stretch like it was rubber. Oh, senora! Good evening. Take this chair."

The Spanish lady smiled a little perfunctorily and sat down rather heavily. A flood of light seemed to pour into her brain, but with the long habit of repression common to Spanish women she said nothing. After awhile she went to her room to think it out.

During these three wretched days Ida thought she should lose her mind and divulge her terrible secret. She knew that happiness was not for her—a thief—and she must tell him so, but not with all these chattering girls around.

In consideration for her pale face and sunken eyes Charlie remained but a few minutes and left, accepting her appointment for the next evening. She would tell him then, and it would be all over.

Then she crept feebly upstairs, but as she reached the first landing the senora was there smiling and saying:

"Come in and rest, dear. You must not go up another stair without rest."

"Thank you," whispered Ida, and she staggered in, looking for some way to drop the ring which she had in her bosom.

She sat a few seconds in silence; then, impelled by a force she could not resist, she stammered:

"Have you found your ring?"

"Yes, dear Ida; I have found it. You may give it now."

Ida burst into a passion of tears and sobs and sank to the ground in utter abasement while she gave back the ring.

"I—I—oh, senora, forgive me!"

"Tell me all about it—why for you do it."

Brokenly Ida told the whole miserable story, and the senora wept with her, for the Spanish women are muy sympatica. Then she kissed the repentant girl, saying:

"I see; I see. It is all right. I have my dear husband's ring. You have your home—your good husband"—

"Oh, senora, I cannot marry. I must tell him, and he will cast me off."

"No, no. You have tell me. You have give back. You have repent. You will never do such thing again. Ah, my dear, we all do wrong sometimes. Now, this is my secret, no longer yours. No one else must know. I know, and I love you. But mans are not made to know everything. It is not necessary; you have no longer a secret to tell him. See?"

Not at Home.

"Is Mrs. Brown at home?" inquired the caller.

"No, ma'am, she isn't," replied the maid.

"Then it was you who was singing so dreadfully out of tune when I turned the corner," said the caller.

"No, indeed, ma'am!" cried the indignant maid. "That was missus."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Animals and Instinct.

It is a mistake to imagine that animals are prevented by instinct from eating injurious food. A chicken will drink paint; a cow partakes of water in which noxious chemicals have been washed; ducks cheerfully swallow snails and choke themselves in the process. No; animals, like children, need watching.

Recently numerous cases of poisoning in ducks, which followed the consumption of cabbage leaves, have attracted much attention. A few hours after feeding poisoning has manifested itself by loss of appetite, great weakness, tottering steps and sometimes death. From time immemorial ducks have thrived on cabbage leaves. The poultry farmers were greatly puzzled.

Then it was discovered that various caterpillars were concealed in the cabbage leaves; hence these ills. But the point is that, far from instinctively detecting any danger and behaving accordingly, the ducks consumed great quantities of the leaves with much apparent relish.—London Answers.

Pleasure and Sacrifice.

An alert little five-year-old was visiting a city park with her mother for the first time. She had noticed the beautiful red and white swan boats as they passed through in the morning, and her mother had promised they should come back after the shopping was done and have a ride.

Shortly after dinner they stood on the bridge over the lagoon watching the boats below and listening to the cry of the barker as he tried to induce the passing crowds to patronize his swan boats.

But when her mother started toward the boat landing little Elsie declared very vigorously that she did not want to go at all and, as her mother urged her, broke forth in tears.

This sudden fear was so different from her former eagerness that her mother could not understand it until she noticed the boatman's call.

He was crying: "Come along! Come along! Ride clear round the pond. Only 5 cents for ladies and gents! Children thrown in!"

Apples as Omens.

In parts of England many quaint superstitions still center round the apple. Apples hung on strings and twirled before the fire are said to fall off in the order that the marriages of the various owners will proceed. An apple eaten before a looking glass is supposed to give a view of the inquirer's future husband, who will be seen peeping over milady's shoulder. Peel safely taken from an apple, tossed three times round the head and thrown to the ground unbroken forms the first letter of a future lover's name. A more recent, though hardly more serious, custom necessitates a bowl of water in which are floating a number of apples. Mothers must drop forks into the bowl from a distance of about four feet. If the fork pierces an apple the feat is believed to protect the performer's children from catching cold.—London Scraps.

Early English Scare.

In 1370 a report was circulated that "certain galleys, with a multitude of armed men therein, were lying off the foreland of Thanet," and an order was at once issued that "every night watch shall be kept between the Tower of London and Billingsgate, with forty men at arms and sixty archers." The watch was kept in the following order: "Tuesday, the drapers and the tailors; Wednesday, the mercers and the apothecaries; Thursday, the fishmongers and the butchers; Friday, the pewterers and the vintners; Saturday, the goldsmiths and the saddlers; Sunday, the ironmongers, the armorers and the cutlers; Monday, the tawers, the spurriers, the bowyers and the girdlers." Even in 1616 pirate vessels were captured off the Kentish coast, between Broadstairs and Margate.—London Chronicle.

The Label Language.

"There's a language in hotel labels, the same as in stamps or flowers," said a courier. "All over Europe the hotel porters paste the hotel labels on your trunks in such a way that the porters in future towns will know what sort of a tipper you are.

"Up at the top of the trunk the label means you are generous. In the middle it means you're a middling sort. Down very low it means you are no good."

"To send our minister on a vacation to Europe."

"Won't there be no church services while he's gone?"

"No, dear."

Franklin and the Balloon.

When the balloon was first discovered some one said to Franklin, "What will ever come of it?" Franklin pointed to a baby in its cradle and said, "And what will ever come of that?"

A Truthful Sign.

Mr. Longear—By the way, did you ever know that large ears are a sign of generosity? Miss Beauti—of course, Mr. Longear. They are a sign that nature has been generous.

Marriages In Spain.

Though marriages in Spain are often arranged without the consent of the bride elect, law or custom gives the Spanish woman the power of appealing to a magistrate if she wishes to escape from a union which is distasteful to her, and the magistrate may take her from her father's house until she is of age and her own mistress, while if she determines to marry a man of whom her parents disapprove she may also place herself under the protection of the law, and she cannot be deprived of her share of the family estates. On reaching her majority she enjoys the same privileges as her brother with regard to property. She may inherit, will, buy and sell. But when she marries she again reverts to the position of a minor, and her husband has entire control of her possessions, which he can squander without rendering any account to her, though she cannot spend a penny of her own money without his consent. He may desert her and her children without incurring any punishment or much public condemnation. A Spanish lady confers on her husband the titles of nobility and any privilege connected therewith she may possess at the time of her marriage.—London Queen.

Early Prejudice Against Potatoes.

The way of the potato was said to have been barred by the prejudice that it was never mentioned in the Bible. In the Lothians it came in about 1740, the year of the famine, from Ireland, but was confined to gardens till about 1754, when it was planted in fields about Aberlady. By the close of the century it was a general article of diet. Ramsay says that George Henderson went about 1750 for a bag of potatoes to Kilsyth, where the Irish method of field culture had lately been tried, and introduced the potato into Mentieth, where a few had been known, but only in kale yards. The old folks, however, did not take kindly to the new food. Old George Bachop, one of the Ochtertyre tenants, when told by his wife that she had potatoes for supper said: "Tatties! Tatties! I never supped on them a' my days and winna the nicht. Gie them to the herd and get me sowens." It is significant that Burns, who sings the praises of kale and porridge and haggis, should have nothing to say of the potato.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Before and After.

She was a frivolous, fashionable young woman with beaux galore, but one man with only a small income seemed to be the favorite.

"You'll have to work hard before you win that girl," said his mother.

"And a good deal harder after you win her," answered his father, who knew what he was talking about.

Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong, of Burlington, Kansas, departed for home yesterday after a delightful visit of four or five weeks with old-time relatives and friends in Centre and Clearfield counties. Thirty-two years ago Will. Armstrong was located in Bellefonte, working as a printer with "Rash." Williams and others, and residing at the Bush House. Prospects of making money in the West lured him to that rapidly growing country and with his wife, who was Miss Elmyra Gill, eldest daughter of Isaac Gill, of near Pleasant Gap, he moved to Kansas. For six or seven years it was rough sledding, but now the Armstrongs have a comfortable fortune, many hundreds of acres of farm land and Mr. Armstrong has retired from active business. No wonder they found so much enjoyment in their little visit to old scenes hereabouts. Many nights were delightfully spent with the Armstrongs, Gills, Pages and Eckenroths, listening to tales of what had transpired in the East and West during the last thirty years. Before starting back to Kansas Mr. Armstrong, who is a reader of "The Republican" told us a little of his experiences in the country which he now calls home. With the exception of the period when Grover Cleveland was President, he said, prosperity had been with him and now he is able to take life easy for the remainder of his years. We congratulate the Armstrongs on the good luck that has come their way. May they live long and happily and never forget Centre County.

The sign not only adds greatly to the appearance of the store but gives that end of town a much busier atmosphere in the evenings.

Mrs. Elizabeth Noll departed on Saturday for her home at Jeanette after a five weeks' visit with her father-in-law, A. G. Noll, of this place, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Huss, at Spring Mills. "I want the home news and I like 'The Republican' better than any other paper," said Mrs. Noll while at this office. In this she voiced the sentiment of scores of other former Centre countians who find "The Republican" a letter from home every week.

Rev. Morris Swartz, an old Bellefonte boy, but now located at Clearfield, accompanied by John Dimeling, also of that place, made an automobile trip to Millheim, State College, Pine Grove Mills and several other places, winding up in Bellefonte on Tuesday evening and returning home yesterday. One of the spots they visited was the old Swartz homestead, near Millheim, and the house where Morris was born at Pine Grove Mills. Somewhat older, of course, and considerably heavier than in olden days, Morris Swartz is the same genial, whole-souled boy that years ago played about town with other Bellefonte youngsters. Everybody who knows him cannot but rejoice in his success in life and ours is the hope that the future will be even brighter for him in his noble cause of helping others.

J. Calvin Meyer made a business trip to Harrisburg on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Badger and son, Joseph, spent Sunday at the former's home, at Mifflinburg.

Mrs. C. U. Hoffer, of Philipsburg, was a guest lasttweek at the home of her father, C. T. Gerberich.

Misses Ida Miller and Mable Shotts returned to their home at Scottdale, this week after a six weeks' visit at the home of George Miller.

Vogel's minstrels at Garman's Opera House was the finest attraction a Bellefonte audience has witnessed this season. The singing and music were great.

Mitchell I. Gardner this week sold his Buick automobile to Jackson Kline, of Howard. He expects to purchase another car, but probably not until spring.

There will be no services in St. John's Reformed church before Sunday, Oct. 24. Rev. and Mrs. Ambrose Schmidt will depart this week for a visit to Hanover, York, Baltimore and Washington.

Dr. Andrew Davidson, son of Michael Davidson, of Philipsburg, recently passed the examination for surgeon in the United States Army and on Monday reported for duty at Washington, D. C.

Heber Wolf, a popular young miller, of Philipsburg, has secured a patent for a folding crate and box. It is a simple device, easly constructed and is expected to prove of great value to hucksters, merchants and farmers.

If a sufficient number of pupils can be secured a school of telegraphy in charge of competent instructors will be opened in Bellefonte, where both young men and women may qualify themselves for commercial and railroadiwork.

John Sourbeck, Jr., who recently removed to West Allison, Wisconsin, arrived in town several days ago and will accompany his wife and baby to their new home on Sunday. Just to keep his hand in John is conducting a pop-corn stand at the fair this week.

Postmaster H. H. Osman, of Port Matilda, accompanied by Mrs. Osman, was in town yesterday. Dropping into "The Republican" office he explained that he was simply in town so that Mrs. Osman might see what was going on at the grounds. We are not sure that Mrs. Osman will swear to his story.

O. E. WEE's latest sensational scenic melodrama, "THE COUNTY SHERIFF," an entirely new play this season, will be seen at the Garman Opera House on Monday Oct. 11. It is announced that this play will be presented by an excellent company, with a wealth of scenic detail, mechanical and electrical effects. A number of pleasing specialties are introduced during the action of the play.

A snappy game of foot ball will be played at 3 o'clock, on Saturday, at Hughes Field, between the strong second team of the Academy and the State College High School eleven. The admissiou will be 15 cents, ladies free. Go out and encourage the home boys. On Monday the Academy eleven will play the Indiana State Normal eleven, at Indiana. Last Saturday the Academy trounced the Bucknell Reserves, 47-2.

A complete and delightful birthday surprise was tendered Mrs. M. R. Johnson by her husband and daughters, assisted by a score of friends and neighbors Monday evening. The evening was spent in social converse, vocal and instrumental music and the partaking of delicious refreshments. After wishing Mrs. Johnson many happy returns of the day and singing "God be with you till we meet again," the guests departed at a late hour, expressing their thorough enjoyment of the evening.

Record of Deaths.

JAMES R. YARNELL.

James R. Yarnell died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Benjamin Corl, at State College early Tuesday morniug from bronchial trouble. He was about 40 years of age, was a menber of the Presbyterian Church and was widely respected among a wide circle of friends. He was engaged in the fruit and green grocery business for a number of years, later removing to Altoona. Because of failing health he returned to State College. He is survived by four sisters and three brothers.

NORRIS--HAWKINS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Norris, of Philipsburg, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, on Wednesday of last week when their youngest daughter, Miss May, became the bride of James Hawkins, eldest son of Rev. John E. Hawkins. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father. The young couple, who have many friends in Philipsburg, will make their home on Ninth Street, at that place.

Memorial Resolutions.

A fitting tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Mary Gray, of Philipsburg, was adopted several days ago by Sheridan Circle, No. 45, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic of that place, the resolutions being as follows:

WHERAS, In His infinite goodness and mercy it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our number our ever faithful and much loved sister, Mrs. Mary Gray, therefore be it.

Resolved, That we as a Circle, bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That we determine in the future to be more closely united in the bonds of Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty.

Resolved, That although we shall miss her from our ranks, we realize that our loss is her eternal gain.

Resolved, That these resolutions be recorded in our minutes, and that a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

"Billy" Potter Was "Pinched."

"Billy," Potter, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Potter had a thrilling experience on the occasion of his recent trip to Pittsburg where he visited with his grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Prince. He had a bully time, and then some, all of which he relates as best he can. It seems that one day "Billy" strayed away from the home of Grandmother Prince and the greatest kind of a search failed to produce any clue to his whereabouts. Just about the time the excitement was at the bursting point the telephone rang at the Prince home. It was from the nearest police station and the message was to the effect that a youngster answering "Billy's" description had been found and that he was all right and in good hands. Sure enough, it was "Billy," and he wasn't the least concerned over the fact that he had been under "arrest." Now, if you ask "Billy" what happened to him out at Pittsburg, he will say: "I was in the police station. I was 'pinched.'"
